The Jury Shakes Hands
A Million Billion Years
Monkeys Ride, Don't Bet
A Poor Railroad Scheme

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.

GEORGE REMUS demonstrated adaptation to environment by making $1,000,000 at bootlegging; he murdered his wife, shooting her down despite pitiful appeals for mercy.

Remus told a Cincinnati jury of men and women that frantic jealousy of a Mr. Dodge made him lose at the shooting moment.

The jury on the first ballot acquitted him and when Remus after acquittal was safely at his cell, and appropriately in tears, members of the jury rushed to shake his hand and congratulate him.

He may have to go to the insane asylum for a little while to prove his good faith.

Crime is a puzzling phenomenon. Hickman, a 19-year-old kidnaper and murderer, for whom all California is hunting, was a model boy in his Sunday school class, vice-president of his high school class. The graduation annual said of him: "Excellent scholastic standing, unequaled record in curriculum activities and a high standard of ideals."

Hickman is thought to have kidnaped and murdered a young girl, partly for revenge. The father had opposed his employment in a bank.

Mr. Remus also killed partly for revenge, his wife had deceived him with another man.

There are different degrees of revenge, and of murder. Twelve jurors unanimously acquitted Remus. Not one juror in 100,000,000 would vote to acquit Hickman.

The Reverend Dr. Cadman remarks that "this planet may exist for nearly a million billion years longer." An anxious Christian asks, "Do you believe that the soul sleeps in the grave with the body a million billion years awaiting for the judgment? If I really believed it, I think I should try to save a pretty good time while still in the flesh.'

The Reverend Dr. Cadman tells the inquiring soul that when you are unconscious a million billion years seems no longer than a minute and a half and tells the soul, "It is better to awake from a prolonged torpor

GIRL SLAYER ESCAPES SEATTLE NET; TRAILED BY $20 RANSOM NOTES

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—New impetus to the quest for William Edward Hickman, sought as the slayer of Marion Parker of Los Angeles was given today by the report from the Valley Garage at Kent, 15 miles south of here, that another of the $20 bills included in the ransom money had been received there.

Garage employes said the bill had been presented by a motorist between 11:30 p. m. and midnight last night. Sheriff Bannick dispatched deputies to Kent.

The garage attendants said the motorist was driving a green Hudson sedan bearing California license No. 1-350-391. This was the license number of the car in which Hickman escaped from Los Angeles.

STILL HOLD HOPE THAT LIFE WILL BE FOUND ON SUNKEN U.S. SUBMARINE

Provincetown, Dec. 22.—In the faint hope that life may still exist aboard the S4, the Navy Department at Washington today ordered rescue operations continued without interruption until the submarine is brought to the surface or absolute proof is obtained that every man aboard her is dead.

The Washington announcement was made by Admiral Hughes and [illegible] Admiral Brumby, [illegible] no doubt [illegible] 120 feet and [illegible] 132 feet deep.

Admiral Hughes said the work [illegible] speed, as there is an extremely faint hope that one or more may have remained alive until fresh air reached them [illegible] too weak to answer signals.

Simultaneous with the official statement by Rear Admiral Brumby that no life existed on the submersible which took down her last plunge Saturday, plans were formed to [illegible] bodies the divers could recover.

25 ESCAPE AS FIRE DESTROYS HUB BUS

Twenty-five passengers on a New York-Boston bus operated by eGorge D. Campbell of Church street, Dorchester, were driven from the machine early today at Milford, Ct., when a celluloid part of a passenger's umbrella took fire from a heater.

It is believed the umbrella had been against the heater all the way from New York, finally becoming heated enough to explode.

The 25 passengers scrambled from the bus in front of Milford Lodge, then watched firemen try unsuccessfully to save the vehicle.

Other buses of the same company picked up the stranded passengers and brought them to Boston.

MRS. LINDY IN TAMPICO

Mexico City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Mexican Telephone Company notified the American embassy today that Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh landed at Tampico about 11 o'clock this morning from Brownsville.

The message said she probably would leave Tampico early this afternoon for Mexico City to join her son for Christmas. The distance from Tampico to Mexico City is about 200 miles.

Heavy clouds along the Gulf of Mexico probably would necessitate very low flying, Harry Brooks, pilot

Mothership of Divers at S4 Grave ☎ Method to Calm Heavy Sea ☎ Machine to Revive 'Dead'

IN ORDER TO QUIET THE SEAS SO THAT THE WORK MAY BE UNINTERRUPTED A LINE OF AIR HOSE OVER 500 FT. IN LENGTH WILL BE SUSPENDED FROM BUOYS AND LAID SO AS TO ENCIRCLE THE S4. Proposed plan to make sea calm by means of a compressed air system that would enable the divers to prosecute their work toward rescuing victims in sunken submarines and create better conditions for subsequent work in raising such a vessel from the imprisoning depths.

rent in her side where she was struck by the Pandin's bow and the hatch of the conning tower which may be cut away.

Admiral Brumby's official statement, made at 11 a. m., read:

"I have not the slightest doubt that there is no life on the S1."

His statement came 115 hours after the S4 went to the bottom and 13 hours after fresh air, pumped from the Falcon began to enter the forward torpedo compartment where six men had been trapped alive.

The admiral said he was unable to announce when rescue operations would be suspended.

"That is up to the Navy Department in Washington," he said. "We have been keeping Washington informed and action on suspension of operations must come from there."

Four divers who descended today could gain no response from hammer tappings on the S4's sides. Since the resumption of rescue operations yesterday oscillating signals, sent at 15 minute intervals from the Falcon, have remained unanswered.

Only a comparatively small number of the bodies may be recovered now, as was the case with the S51.

The work of recovering any dead means the utmost danger to any of the divers who may attempt it—but they are ready and willing.

As the hours passed without sign of life and still the tremptine of fresh air down 102 feet went on aboard the the Falcon, a faint—but very faint—spark of hope that the six trapped men still lived glowed in the hearts of toiling men above them.

A radiogram from Simon Lake, inventor of the even-keel submarine to Admiral Frank H. Brumby aboard the Falcon, contained the inventor's estimate that six men might live 116 hours and 40 minutes in the torpedo compartment before the lack of fresh air killed them.

They might be unconscious for many hours before they died, the message said.

It was a spark of hope, that message, but it died as the clock ticked off the seconds.

At 10 a. m. the air coming from the torpedo room was much purer, but still had a peculiar oily smell.

Just previous to Admiral Brumby's statement that there was no longer any hope, the Falcon dispatched the following radiogram, signed by him, to Boston Navy Yard:

"Alternate blowing and venting of air lines to the torpedo room by way of the 'S. C.' tubes has been continuous and vented air is now markedly less foul. The second airline was connected and in use shortly after midnight. Divers have examined bows on both sides and find upper torpedo tube shutters closed and apparently lower torpedo tube shutters closed but a heavy plaster of mud over them.

"Weather continues good and Falcon has some lee as wind has shifted to north. Examination of bow and other parts of S4 now in progress. Listening continuous but no signals heard or any response to divers' hammer taps."

Pump More Air

Divers who resumed operations at daylight following a four-hour rest could gain no response to tappings against the steel hull. The men within, it then seemed certain, were beyond all responding.

Fresh air to breathe at last, but no life down there on the ocean bed to breathe it.

New relays of divers descended to the muddy bottom. Force and draw of the air pumps sounded continually aboard the mine-sweeper Falcon.

American Reporter Bared Loss of S4 Position

Provincetown, Dec. 22.—The Navy attempted yesterday to hide its loss of the S4's position and but for the enterprise of Mark McIntyre, Boston Evening American reporter, it might never have been disclosed.

McIntyre, in a fishing boat near the Falcon, wig-wagged in semaphore to a navy diver and the latter wig-wagged the story back. McIntyre, a signalman in the navy during the war, then passed on what he had learned to the other newspapermen.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby made no announcement of the fact. On the contrary, in a message to the Boston Navy Yard he reported the first diver down "Heard no life on the S4." That was at 1.30, hours before the submarine's position was relocated.

GIFFORD FLAYS NAVY ON S4

Cotuit, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—Open criticism of the "inactivity of the navy" at the scene of the S4 disaster, and refusal of officials in charge of rescue and salvage attempts to give "the truth to the newspaper men" was found in Provincetown "on every hand" by Congressman Charles L. Gifford, Cotuit. Mr. Gifford said today:

"Why don't they do something? Is the cry heard everywhere in Provincetown," Mr. Gifford said. "I went to Provincetown because of the terrific criticism that came to me.

CHARGES JUSTIFIED.

"I knew the people there would tell me just how they feel. While I dislike to say too much, I found their criticism obviously justified.

"When the S4 was lost all day yesterday from morning to night, why wouldn't they give those newspaper boys the truth? They wouldn't tell the newspaper men that the submarine was lost. They gave out wrong stories, and the boys had to resort to speculating in many cases. The rope attached to the submarine never should have become detached or broken, causing yesterday's delay.

TWO DAYS' WORK.

"They could have worked all day yesterday. They could have worked the day before.

"The navy is going to say that there wasn't buoyancy enough to raise the submarine. But they didn't even attempt it. Why didn't they try? The accident never would have happened at all if the tender supposed to have been over the submarine at all times hadn't been in Provincetown harbor, miles away at the time."

McGinley's Father Convinced Navy Did Its Best

Provincetown, Dec. 22.—"I am satisfied the navy has done everything possible to rescue my son and others aboard the S4. We must accept what has happened."

That was the statement of John J. McGinley of Norristown, Pa., after a conference with Rear Admiral Brumby on the Falcon. McGinley's son was executive officer of the submarine.

McGinley was quoted in a previous statement as criticising the operations of the rescue fleet.

ed, running the youth's victims to four. Petit also is believed to be mortally wounded, and his mother may die.

Petit's demented career with a shotgun, with which he was known to be a dead shot, ended at noon when a posse of deputy sheriffs and volunteers fired shot after shot through the doors of an upper room in the residence of Alden Tedford in Topsham, across the Androscoggin river from his home.

He fell with three bullet wounds in the abdomen, any of which would put him on the danger list in Brunswick Hospital, where he was taken.

Before Petit was overcome, he had killed Mrs. White, Tedford's sister and housekeeper, as she stood at her work in the kitchen pantry preparing dinner. Her skull was crushed by the blaze of shots from his gun. She was alone at the time.

Petit, known as a crack shot, was considered one of the most dangerous men at large in this State for years. He carried into the woods his shotgun and at least a dozen shells. Orders were to take him, dead or alive.

Mrs. Petit received about 50 large shot in the back and neck after being saved by her husband from being beaten to death with a heavy hammer, and is in a critical condition.

of the big tri-motored monoplane, said. If similar conditions prevail between Tampico and Mexico City the last leg of the flight to the Mexican capital may not be attempted until tomorrow, Brooks said.

Customs officials on both sides of the border had received orders to permit the plane and party to cross unmolested. The ship headed directly into Mexico after circling once over Brownsville.

Mexico City, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—The thoughts of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today turned to the progress of another who travels by plane—his mother.

Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh is expected to arrive at Mexico City either late today or tomorrow morning, and her son plans to fly to meet the plane bringing her from Detroit.

Lindbergh and his mother will have a quiet Christmas eve dinner Saturday night at the United States embassy. Nobody outside the personnel and official family of Dwight W. Morrow, American Ambassador, will be present.

There will be no official program Christmas Day. The flier and his mother will be left free to spend the day precisely as they please. On Monday afternoon, however, Mr. and Mrs. Morrow will hold a reception for Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh.

BOSTON, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1927

SLUGGING THUG'S NO. 23

Miss Helen Richardson of Cambridge, who was today the 23d woman victim of Cambridge's slugging snatch thief. He got her Christmas savings. A city-wide hunt is on for him.

QUINN DEMANDS CAPTURE; GIRL HIT, ROBBED

A huge vigilance committee with every Cambridge resident a member was asked for today by Mayor Edward W. Quinn, stirred by the Cambridge snatch thief. His latest victims are Miss Helen Richardson, 20-year-old beauty contestant, of No. 42 Magazine street, and Mrs. Gertrude Wagner of No. 216 Franklin street, Cambridge. The latter was at Franklin and Magazine streets, only a block from her home, when a negro leaped from an automobile and snatched at her handbag.

Screaming, Mrs. Wagner attempted to retain possession, but he was too strong for her, seized the bag, leaped into his car, an Essex coach, and fled.

Mrs. Morgan is the twenty-third woman to be thus attacked during the snatch thief's rein of terror.

"Every citizen should regard the situation in a serious light with a view to the apprehension of this mean, contemptible thug who is making the women of this city his prey," the Mayor indignantly declared today.

"I call on clubs, associations and private citizens to help, keeping in mind at the same time that the police are doing everything in their power to take him into custody. They can't be at all places at once.

"From reports that reach me, I judge it is the same man plying the terrorizing game.

GAS MEN WON'T BE SNOOPERS FOR DRYS

Pawtucket, R. I., Dec. 22 (A.P.)—President David Daly of the Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric Company today revoked his order, issued last week, directing meter readers and other employes to report the existence of stills and other apparatus that may indicate violation of the prohibition laws.

When the order was issued Mr. Daly made public a statement saying he was acting under the direction "of the United States district attorney."

Since then, John S. Murdock, United States district attorney for Rhode Island, has denied directing any such order.

Mr. Daly today issued the following statement to the employes of the company and to the public of the communities it serves, comprising approximately 100,000 people.

"I am delighted to know that we were mistaken in thinking that the district attorney insisted upon our issuing the order to our employes.

"We have no wish to spy on our customers. It certainly is not in our interest to do so and we do not believe that it is in the interest of the public.

"The order is revoked but this revocation must not be construed by our employes as authorizing any relaxation of vigilance in respect to illegal use of gas furnished by the companies."

MAYOR TO HOLD WATCH ON CITY EMPLOYES

Dr. John E. Walsh, Mayor of Revere, declared today he will "hold a watch" on city employes to see that they get to work on time and give the people of the city the full measure of time for which they are paid.

Habitual tardiness, he explained, was his reason for suspending his own secretary, I. Shepherd Werman, for the rest of the year without pay. This suspension is to serve as an example to others, he said.

The suspension of Robert W. Copeland, veteran city auditor, the Mayor said, was due to the alleged transfer of $7,000 by Copeland from one division of the street department to another, contrary to provisions of the city charter.

Paul asked the Senator in his note if he knew anyone who would give a boy a dog if it were promised a good home.

Senator Walsh communicated with Francis H. Rowley, president of the M. S. P. C. A., and Paul got the dog for a Christmas present.

Paul wanted to name the dog Senator, but was prevailed upon to keep its original name, "Tootsie."

NAVY DIVERS FIND NO SIGNS OF LIFE ON S4

MAY TAKE BODIES OUT TODAY

The North Atlantic, sure of its prey, was docile again. The sea lay flat as glass reflecting the sun in the lee of Wood End's sandy strip. The wind was only a breath of 15 miles, still from the north. The air was warm and the sea was warm.

And above the cries of the navy men from boat to boat, above the shouts of Commander Ellsberg to the divers below, above the creak of windlass, sounded the swishing force and draw of the air pumps on the Falcon. They seemed to speak—to say, "Too late!"

Navy Diver William Wickwire was the first man to go over the side of the Falcon after the resumption of operations with daylight. Wickwire was swung into the calm seas at 8:15 a. m. His orders were to land on the bow of the S4 and disentangle a line fouled about the conning tower, then walk forward over the torpedo compartment, listening for any sound of life below him.

In the absence of any such sign, the diver was to swing off the top of the sunken craft and make a survey of the extent to which her bow has been freed of the slimy ooze that covers the bottom to a depth of several feet.

Wickwire was also to make his way to the stern and see how the keel was resting. He was warned to avoid the diving rudders of the submarine, which are open because she was submerged when struck Saturday. He was also told to give the hole on the starboard side of the conning tower a wide berth.

Big Hole in Craft

Wickwire reported the depth of mud on the starboard side little more than a foot and that a chain could be carried under the sullen mariner bow.

Three divers followed Wickwire below, James Ingram, Tom Eadie and Joseph Eiben. Ingram's suit leaked when he had been 35 minutes under water and he was forced to ascend without accomplishing anything.

Eadie, who was making his fourth trip to the S4, moved the grappling iron and line from the conning tower to the bow superstructure. He reported a lot of mud amidships of the sunken ship.

Eiben surveyed conditions on the port side of the S4.

Divers have reported much wreckage from the Paulding on the forward deck of the submarine. This includes two ribs, plating and part of the keel. The Paulding cut a hole in the S4's deck from a point just aft of the forward gun to a point back of the conning tower.

May Wait Till Spring

Commander Ellsberg himself intimated at least one descent in order to get firsthand knowledge of he S4's position to guide him in salvage work. Ellsberg made several trips to the sea floor during the work of raising the S51, for which he received the Distinguished Service Medal.

The calm of today and the comparative calm of yesterday are not characteristic of the Winter mood of the ocean off this town. Pontoon work is calm sea work and a wind blowing due north, as it is today provides the only appreciable lee from the narrow strip of sand.

If the decision is made to abandon the work until it calmer weather of Spring, then at least one attempt, it is believed, will be made to recover what bodies may be trapped in the conning tower of the ill-fated undersea boat.

As was the case with the S51, divers will likely make an attempt to open the hatch and gain access to the tower. There one body at least will be found the body of the man whose watch it was at the S4's periscope when sudden death in the knife-like bow of the Paulding came into his view—if, indeed, he saw it at all.

Prove Heroes All

Opposed to cessation of salvage while weather conditions are favorable, Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District, expressed his opinion that the work should go "right ahead" even though all life on the S4 is extinct.

No order countermanding that of Sunday from Admiral Hughes at Washington that the work be "expedited" has been received.

As today's work began a strange scene was enacted. The coast guard cutter Tampa moved alongside the destroyer Paulding, which on Saturday sent the S4 to the bottom with her crew of 40. The Tampa laid her towlines aboard and started the Paulding, stern first, towards the Boston Navy Yard.

As the two ships faded from view in the morning haze, the Paulding appeared to be looking back.

Announcement of the personnel of the court of inquiry which will probe the S4-Paulding crash, was made here. The board, which will meet at Boston Navy Yard on January 4, will be headed by Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson and consist, in addition, of Rear Admiral Julian Latimer, Captain Joseph V. Cronin and Commander L. E. Benson, a submarine expert.

An attempt to salvage the missing sixth pontoon, lost by the tug Iuka while on route from Brooklyn, was being made by the naval tug Chewink near Hortons' Point, L. I., On a previous attempt 12 men of the Chewink were nearly drowned.

The pontoon is awash on the rocks, and it is not known whether the constant hammering will necessitate repairs.

Silence Spells Doom

Heroism of the highest type was written into the navy records by eighteen divers, who, working in relays, in pairs or singly through the blackness of night, floundered about the bed of the ocean where rests the submarine until they succeeded in their gigantic task—that of bringing fresh air to the stifled torpedo room.

Diver Thomas Eadie, who preceded Diver Scott down to the submarine, reported that 18 feet of the submarine's bow was clear, and that a line could be passed under it with little trouble.

A peculiar odor resembling that of rancid oil, continued to be noticed in the air vented from the torpedo room. The theory was suggested that the imprisoned men had let out the compressed air in the torpedoes when the air supply in the chamber began to fail, and that oil had been released at the same time.

Diver Michaels Waded in Mud Waist Deep Around Lost Sub

"Mud at the bottom of the ocean where the S4 lies was so soft that I sank up to my waist and would have kept going up to the present time, I guess, if they hadn't pulled me back." L. C. "Whitey" Michaels, naval deep sea diver, told Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commander of the First Naval District, while the diver was seated in a wheel chair at Chelsea Naval Hospital today.

Michaels said that the Provincetown fishermen who said the bottom was sandy were wrong.

"And Michaels ought to know; he was walking around there for three hours," remarked Rear Admiral Andrews.

Michaels said that diving conditions off Provincetown were very bad.

The diver and the admiral were "shipmates" aboard the old cruiser Maryland. Mrs. Michaels visited her husband and will take him home to Newport next week.

Frank Curley, who holds the world's record for diving—306 feet—and who rescued a naval man with a broken leg from beneath the sea at the time of the F4 disaster at Honolulu, was below off Provincetown today, having received "the lay of the sea" from Michaels.

Rushes Machines to S4 to Resuscitate "Dead" Men

Three machines which, it is claimed, resuscitated persons believed dead for forty-eight hours were today rushed to Provincetown by Lieutenant George C. Calnan of Watertown aboard the tug Penacook for possible use on S4 victims.

Lieutenant Calnan, attached to the Naval Construction Department at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was at home on leave when he received orders to assume charge of the apparatus which was shipped from New York.

Navy officials hope by use of these machines to revive the six men trapped in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine and believe overcome by lack of air twenty-four hours ago.

The machines are of German make and designed to supplant the pulmotor, which, it was stated at the navy yard, has some disadvantages. The owner is a man named Blatt, of No. 32 Fulton street, New York city, and he has lent them to the Navy Department.

A nurse in Germany, "dead" by suffocation for forty-eight hours, was revived, a companion of Lieutenant Calnan declared, and persons thought drowned have been revived after four hours or more.

The apparatus pumps pure oxygen into the lungs by natural breathing rhythm, while the heart is at the same time stimulated by adrenalin. A breathing mask is fitted over the mouth and the arms are strapped to the frame which flaps them back and forth to pump in the oxygen.

EXPERT TORPEDO MAN RUSHES TO S4 RESCUE

Sought out at the special request of Rear Admiral C. R. Plunkett, commandant of the Third Naval District, New York, Albert Carl Grube, expert torpedoman and diver, of Rochester, N. Y., passed through the Hub on his way to Provincetown after having re-enlisted for the express purpose of lifesaving on the S4 wreck.

Grube is one of the experienced veterans whom Naval officials sought as soon as the need for more divers became known.

A. C. Grube

Commander Edward Ellsberg, in charge of diving operations, announced after conferring with rear-Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing the salvage work, and with other officers that the next move would be to see whether chains could not be passed under the bow.

If the result of this survey is favorable, the large pontoons brought here from the Brooklyn Navy Yard will be used. These pontoons saw service in the salvaging of the S51, which was sunk in a collision off Block Island two years ago.

It was not until hours after navy experts had believed the trapped six could survive that the first air line was made fast to the listening device. From the steel shell that appears to be the tomb of Lieutenant Graham Newell Fitch and his five men no sound was heard. At the time the first hose was attached, 10 o'clock last night, no sound had been heard from the men for thirty-six hours.

After a heart breaking day, with the sunken submarine lost to them, divers relocated it and the work of bringing fresh air to the suffocating men was redoubled. By 3:30 o'clock, half an hour before the first fresh air was pumped in, seven divers had been down to the S4.

WILBUR FAVORS SURFACE 'LOOKOUT PATROLS' TO CURB DISASTERS

NAVY HEAD BELIEVES LOSS OF THE S4 WAS 'UNAVOIDABLE'

Washington, Dec. 22 (A. P.).—The disaster that befell the submarine S4 may result in a change in naval policy that will provide for a lookout patrol of surface vessels while a submarine is submerged in practice maneuvers.

In the opinion of Secretary Wilbur, all other devices, such as buoys and scrapers, have been found impracticable by navy experts.

If destroyers had been patrolling the Massachusetts waters in which the S4 was maneuvering they could have warned the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding of the position of the submarine and a collision would have been avoided, it is held.

Under the circumstances Secretary Wilbur believes from available information that the accident was unavoidable, but that naval experts, in giving close scrutiny in an effort to prevent another such disaster, should take into consideration the opportunities which probably lie in a surface patrol for guarding submarines.

Naval officials are making few statements concerning the attacks being made on them as a result of the S4 disaster.

They expressed interest today in the statement made by Representative Gifford and his Massachusetts constituents, but other than to say that they have considered Mr Gifford, or the Cape Cod fishermen whom he quoted, as being sufficiently expert on deep sea diving to judge conditions under which it could be carried on with safety, they refused to comment.

The statement made Sunday by Naval officials that the Wandank was a tender ship and was not supposed to be over the submerable for protection purposes was reiterated in answer to Mr. Gifford's charge that the ship was miles away when it should have been over the submarine.

Navy Officer Answers S4 Widow's Queries on Death

Baltimore, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Baltimore News today publishes a series of questions which it says were directed to the Navy Department through that paper, by Mrs. Roy K. Jones, widow of the commander of the ill-fated submarine S4, asking the department to tell her how and why her husband went to his death. The replies also are given.

The article says four questions were asked by telephone as follows:

1—Why was the destroyer Paulding allowed to operate in an area set aside for submarine maneuvers?

2—Why was the S4 allowed to make a deep sea dive with no salvage vessels at hand?

3—Why didn't the Navy Department have pontoons at hand?

4—Why was Provincetown with its cold, stormy waters selected as the scene of the maneuvers.

Lieutenant Commander F. C. Denebrink, spokesman for the bureau of operations, the News says, could not answer the first question, referring the inquirer to the chief of the bureau.

To the second question the lieutenant-commander was quoted as saying the S4 was not making a deep sea test, but was merely conducting standardization tests while running submerged. It was not deemed practicable that always vessels be present every time a submarine submerges.

To the third question Denebrink replied that the Navy Department was unable to foresee when or where these accidents would occur. Submarine operations were conducted not at one point, but along the entire Atlantic seaboard and out on the Atlantic. "It would be recalled," he was quoted as saying, "that pontoons had to be especially constructed to salvage the S51 when the submarine sank in Long Island Sound in 1925."

House in 2 States, Three Counties, 4 Towns

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A house located in two States, three counties and four townships figured in a case brought to the attention of State troopers leading to the arrest of Walter Robinson, 51, of Hoosick Falls, on a charge of attempted larceny. He was sentenced to 90 days.

The house in question is that of Anthony Alcuri on the New York-Vermont State line, in Rensselaer County, but also in Bennington and Washington Counties, in the town of Hoosick and in the towns of Bennington White Creek and Walloomsac as well.

Alcuri recently slaughtered some sheep and charged that Robinson, who is said to have served time in jail before, attempted to enter the slaughter house, a short distance from his home, for purpose of theft.

GOV. SMITH NOW LAST HOPE

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—Governor Smith today has before him a report of the State board of alienists declaring Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray sane.

The report followed an exhaustive examination by the alienists. Both are scheduled to die in the electric chair January 12 for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, Queens County art editor.

Having been declared sane, the last hope Mrs. Snyder and Gray have of escaping the electric chair is clemency from Governor Smith.

While refusing to discuss the report, Governor Smith indicated he would soon hear the date for the clemency hearing for the couple. This is expected to take place two or three days before the date set for the execution.

The board that examined the condemned couple is composed of Dr. Paul G. Paddiken superintendent of St. Lawrence State Hospital; Dr. Joseph Moore, acting superintendent of Matteawan State Hospital, and Dr. George Smith, superintendent of Central Islip State Hospital.

$10 WILL BUY XMAS DINNER

Christmas dinner for five or six persons will average about $10 in Boston this year. This includes everything from the fruit cocktail to the salted nuts and mints.

A survey of Boston markets disclosed a Christmas supply that permits low prices on poultry and meats, the principal item on the menu. Turkeys are very plentiful, the average price being 49 cents a pound for good ones. Geese, ducks and chickens are being quoted at from 40 to 50 cents a pound and fowl 40 cents.

Prime Spring lamb is plentiful, also pork products of all kinds, but good beef remains scarce and high.

Oysters are 90 cents a quart, 50 cents a pint, and the supply is ample for the Christmas demand.

Fruits and vegetables are reasonably priced with but one item missing this year. Cranberries are scarce and retail around 25 cents a quart where obtainable. String beans are in the market now at 50 cents a pound, spinach at 30 cents a peck, lettuce 15 cents a head, squash 5 cents, sweet and Irish potatoes 5 cents, and turnips 5 cents, celery 15 cents a bunch.

SLAYER OF PARKER GIRL TRACED TO NORTH BY $20 GOLD NOTES

HICKMAN RECOGNIZED WHEN HE BUYS GOODS IN SEATTLE

number of the car reported stolen by Hickman in Los Angeles last Sunday night from F. R. Peck.

An employe of the garage said he had taken over the number of the car last night without realizing its importance. When he saw newspapers today associating Hickman had been seen in Seattle he checked the serial number on the gold certificate given him by the man and found it was K6401671.

STEALS CAR AT GUN POINT

It was revealed today that Hickman, held up Peck in Hollywood Peck was alone when the man he afterwards identified as Hickman took the car at pistol point, said D. L. Larkin, business associate of Peck.

Portland, Ore., youths reported having traveled from Los Angeles, said, northward in a green Hudson sedan, with a man who looked behind frequently as if fearing pursuit.

They gave police the license card number and a check by the Associated Press disclosed that the car was Peck's.

Autopsy Shows Kidnaped Girl Dissected Alive

Los Angeles, Dec. 22.—While the search for William Edward Hickman was suddenly transferred to Seattle today, Los Angeles police were given information tending to show that the 12-year-old schoolgirl had been dissected alive.

This theory was based on findings by a surgeon, who performed an autopsy and results of chemical analyses.

Meantime a Seattle dispatch said belief that Hickman had eluded the hastily-drawn police net of for him and has headed for Canada was admitted by officers there.

George V. Willoughby, Seattle haberdasher, positively identified pictures of Hickman as those of the customer who passed a $20 bill in the store.

Seattle card rooms, apartments, hotels and rooming houses were searched without avail while deputy sheriffs and State patrolmen guarded the highways leading from the city.

The search admittedly was futile and the officials directing it believe Hickman headed for the north.

Police Chemist Rex Walsh reported his investigation had shown that stains in the apartment occupied by Hickman during the days of the kidnaping and murder were blood. The spots were fresh, the chemist said, after a microscopic examination.

County Chemist Abernathy said there was no evidence that the child had been given an anaesthetic prior to death.

AUTOPSY FINDINGS.

The autopsy surgeon reported that the girl was not choked to death. If these hypotheses are true, it is possible they said that the little girl was cut to pieces while still alive.

It was last Saturday night that the torso of the small body was bartered to the father, Perry M. Parker, Los Angeles bank official, for $1,500. It was Saturday night, too, that Hickman, and another man were seen leaving the apartment carrying a number of bundles, according to two witnesses. A third man waited in a car at the entrance to the apartment house.

Next day missing parts of the body of the fiend's victim were found scattered along a road where apparently they had been cast from an automobile.

TRAIL TO SEATTLE.

The trailing of Hickman to Seattle and his admitted escape today from the police net spread for him, there followed disclosures that he had left at Willoughby's haberdashery one of the seventy-five $20 gold certificates received as "ransom" from Marion Parker's father.

The numbers of all the notes had been broadcast.

The "Fox" suspect entered the shop and asked for a pair of black gloves and a suit of underwear.

The suspect appeared tired and worn. He put the gloves on while the underwear was wrapped up. Then he pulled from a pocket a $20 gold certificate, gave it to the proprietor, who placed it in the cash register and made change. The young man walked out.

The haberdasher immediately took the bill from the register and telephoned Captain William Kent, chief of detectives.

"What are the serial numbers," he asked Captain Kent, "on those $20 bills that were paid to the Los Angeles kidnaper by the father of the girl he murdered?"

Kent gave the numbers.

"Well," the haberdasher replied excitedly, "Hickman has just left my store."

On the bill which the store proprietor received from his customer was the number K-6501979.

The numbers of the bills given Hickman by Parker were K-6016001 to K-6016075 inclusive.

Threatens Children of Stolen Auto Owner

Kansas City, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—A mysterious telephone call threatening children of Dr. Herbert L. Mantz, whose stolen automobile was used by the kidnaper of Marion Parker, in Los Angeles, today stood out in the trails leading to the home city of William Edward Hickman.

While police believe the threat came from a person of unbalanced mind, Dr. Mantz took precautions and detectives watched his home. He lives near the place where Mrs. Eva M. Hickman, mother of the suspect, resides with her daughter.

Dr. Mantz received the call at his office Tuesday in the presence of two detectives who happened to be discussing the Los Angeles kidnaping with him. This was revealed to the Kansas City star in an anonymous telephone message from St. Louis.

The St. Louis informant first asked the Star if there were any developments in the Parker case. Told there were none, he said: "Well, I'll give you a tip. Dr. Mantz knows a lot about it. He has had contact with that fellow. He was in Kansas City Tuesday and threatened Dr. Mantz. His is scared to death."

Dr. Mantz admitted receipt of the call and told of is concern for his three children. He said a man first demanded if the physician recognized his voice. Dr. Mantz said he did not.

When the man told the physician he was the bandit who held him up and took his car here last Fall, Dr. Mantz signaled the detectives and they started to trace the call, but failed.

"I wouldn't be in all this trouble if it were not for you," the man said. "I'm going to get one of your girls. You know what will happen to her."

Dr. and Mrs. Mantz have a five-year-old son and twin daughters, 16 months old.

Police revealed that they had asked the Los Angeles authorities to trace a 23-year-old youth who attended high school here with Hickman. The officers said he went to the coast several months ago. He was described as "Hickman's double." He was treated for a mental ailment at a Missouri institution.

Hickman in Hollywood Holdup, Steals Auto

Los Angeles, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—William E. Hickman, accused kidnaper-slayer, held up F. R. Peck in Hollywood Sunday night, taking Peck's green Hudson sedan which was seen yesterday by two Portland, Ore., youths, who identified Hickman as the driver.

The California license of the car is 1350391 and motor number 460,970.

CAMBRIDGE IN FIGHT ON NEW LIGHT RATE

Opposition to a 75-cent service charge proposed by the Cambridge Electric Light Company was voiced today at a hearing before the public utilities commission by the city solicitor of Cambridge, Peter J. Nelligan, and Samuel H. Mildram, utility expert.

The company offered these two plans:

First—A service charge of 75 cents a month with a reduction in the maximum household rate from eight to six cents.

Second—A three-cent rate plus an area charge of 4½ cents for 100 square feet of floor space, plus 75 cents service charge.

J. J. Cheney, for the company, declared the schedules would mean a reduction in the revenues of the company of $112,000 based on 1926 business. On the basis of a 50-cent service charge, he said, the company would lose $181,000. This latter figure, Attorney Robert G. Dodge for the company volunteered, was as far as the company is willing to go.

Mildram said he would not object to a 50-cent service charge provided the rate were reduced to 6 cents for the first 30-kilowat hours with a sliding scale downward for increased consumption.

Nelligan objected to any service charge, but would agree to a minimum use charge of 50 cents.

INVENTOR PUTS END TO LIFE

Minor Robinson, wealthy Newton inventor, and said to be a grandson of George D. Robinson, Governor of Massachusetts from 1884 to 1887, committed suicide today by shooting himself through the head, according to a report by Medical Examiner C. Morton Gallagher.

The shooting occurred in an upstairs room of the Robinson residence in Park avenue, where the inventor, who was 62 years old, lived with his son and a housekeeper. His wife died three years ago, and he never fully recovered from depression that followed her death, friends said.

His son rushed upstairs upon hearing the shot and found his father, an automatic pistol by his side, police reported. The son called Dr. Irving G. Fisher, who notified the authorities.

SALE OF STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT HALTED BY COURT

Judge Cox in the equity session of the Superior Court today issued a temporary injunction restraining the sale of a seat in the Boston Stock Exchange by Aden J. Keith & Company of Boston to C. Lee Todd, Jr., of Lincoln. An order of notice is made returnable tomorrow.

The action of Judge Cox was taken on a bill in equity brought by Robert P. Marble of Attleboro, who says the firm induced him by false representations to purchase with stock he owned worth $27,000 about 2,700 shares of which he says was worthless stock, or else of a value far below what he paid.

2,000 CHILDREN TO BE GIVEN FREE SHOES

More than 2000 boys and girls from the tenement sections of the city will be made happy at Christmas this year when they receive a brand new pair of shoes as a gift. These gift shoes are made possible through the efforts of the Volunteers of America. On Saturday, at noontime the Volunteers of America will commence their seventh annual Christmas distribution of free shoes to worthy boys and girls. Every pair given away will be factory-new and will be properly fitted to the feet of the recipients.

SANTA IS GERMANS' BEST CUSTOMER; REAP MILLIONS

Berlin, Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—German toys have gone to all quarters of the world to gladden young hearts. More than $20,000,000 worth were exported up to October. About 18,000 different varieties of toys were produced. So great is the output that it would take Santa Claus twelve and a half days to deliver one toy of each variety to a child if the old gentleman worked at the rate of one toy a minute.

The modern doll has bobbed hair and short skirts. Never have there been so many mechanical toys.

Grants "Xmas Amnesty"

Christmas amnesty was granted today to defendants convicted on liquor and serious automobile charges in Norfolk County Superior Court at Dedham by Judge James M. Gibbs. He put over until Tuesday the dispositions of all these cases to which the accused have been tried and found guilty.

It's Different When One's Grandfather Rules the Land

London, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—Little Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Duke of York, was the centre of attraction at King's Cross station today while en route to Sandringham to spend Christmas with her grandparents, the King and Queen.

The Princess, 20 months old, had a foretaste of Christmas as the cushions of the salon were covered with printed tints representing fairy book stories, and there were similar picture rugs on the floor. Bunches of holly hung on the sides of the room of the salon and a big cracker was suspended from the roof.

Police Warn of Thin Ice; Watch Out, Skaters

Thin ice, Christmas skates and the drowning of a four-year-old Watertown boy while testing the frozen surface of Spot Pond Brook in Malden today led Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote to sound a timely warning to parents.

"Do not allow your children to try out their new skates unless you are perfectly sure by investigation, that the ice in your locality is safe" he advises.

The police departments, he declares, are ready to furnish information concerning the safety and strength of ice within any given district.

3 RESCUE BOY THROUGH ICE

Twwo firemen and a letter-carrier, linking themselves together with a rope, today rescued five-year-old John Steen from drowning in the water of Manet Lake, Hough's Neck.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Steen of Winthrop street, Hough's Neck, fell through thin ice while sliding. His cries for help were heard and Joseph Capiferi plunged in to save him, held safe himself by a rope circled about Fred J. O'Brien, a brother fireman, and Patrick Feeney, mailman.

SPORTSMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

New Bedford, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Manuel G. Dutra, thirty-five, well known in sporting circles here, died at Union Hospital early this morning as a result of receiving a fractured skull and jaw in an automobile accident near Death Curve Bridge, Freetown, last night.

He was one of six passengers in a machine driven by Hugh J. Kennedy, member of the New Bedford Fire Department. The driver and the others were reported to have escaped injury.

GOV. TRUMBULL DOES AIR STUNTS; HE'S A PILOT

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 22 (A. P.).—John H. Trumbull, Connecticut's governor, is a qualified airplane pilot today. Gov. Trumbull took off and landed an airplane at Brainard Field and performed specified aerial evolutions under the eye of an aviation inspector and ad ed a federal license as a "private" pilot to his state license as pilot.

Leased for Hub P. O. Branch

Adelphus M. Burroughs of Boston today received word from John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster-general, that he has been awarded the lease for the Jamaica Plain branch of the postoffice at Nos. 2-4 Myrtle street, Jamaica Plain. The lease runs for ten years.

GANG OF THUGS ROUTED BY WATCHMAN

A gang of thugs escaped in a rain of bullets with one of their number believed wounded, after a gun battle with a watchman who foiled their attempt to plunder he E W Warren box factory at No. 910 Broadway, Everett today.

"Help me, Al, he's got me," shrieked one of them at the height of the gun play. As Philip Petrino 24, the watchman, ran to the office to telephone police, the thugs fired a parting volley and escaped through a rear window.

Within a few moments a squad of police had surrounded the building, but a thorough search failed to reveal anyone in hiding.

The police scattered along the Boston & Maine tracks which run nearby and followed them into Boulevville but the fugitives escaped.

Petrino, who lives at No. 153A Belmont street, Everett, and employed as watchman only three weeks, had just completed making his customary rounds.

As he emerged from the elevator on the fourth floor a dim shadow stepped up close and began pumping the contents of a pistol at him. Petrino dropped to his knee and emptied his own revolver at the gunman.

The latter yelled to his pals that he was wounded. They began firing at Petrino. Then they seized their wounded comrade and fled.

The watchman could give no description of his foes since the action occurred in darkness. Police notified Malden, Somerville and Charlestown authorities, who sent out patrols to watch for the thugs.

GOVERNMENT MUST CLEAR UP OIL INTIMIDATIONS

Washington, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Attorneys in the case had agreed to combine the contempt and intimidation charges in the oil jury tampering case, Justice Siddons today decided that first the government must clear up the accusations that it had intimidated witnesses during the hearings.

The attorneys representing Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns, and others, promised to produce a number of witnesses to substantiate the intimidation allegations.

HUNGRY MINISTERS GET INTO TROUBLE FISHING

Nashua, N. H., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—They were fishing through the ice at Horseshoe Pond, these two clergymen of Manchester, Rev. James Pelski and Rev. J. S. Bartl, when dinner time came. The were hungry, and Nashua has restaurants.

Warden Barnard found the unattended lines, but Judge Hallinan in court this morning was kindly disposed and placed the complaint on file after costs were paid. The usual fine for unattended setlines is $50 and costs.

'PORK BARREL' TACTICS SEEN IN NAVY QUIZ

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR

Washington, Dec. 22.—Unless the Senate or the House orders an investigation by a special committee of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder's criticisms of the navy no house probe can be expected at this session.

Both the Senate and House Committees on Naval Affairs are dominated by members from States in which navy yards, stations and hospitals are maintained. These members are alarmed by the assertion of the admiral that the money of the American people is being squandered on unnecessary yards, stations and hospitals.

Unless Congress consents to the closing down of these unnecessary plants, the money they cost cannot be spent to better advantage by the Navy. This the members from the states where these "pork barrel" plants are situated well know. Hence the hostility with which the Admiral has been crossexamined before the House Committee on Naval Affairs.

No attempt has been made by that committee to find out what reports are on file in the Navy Department that might sustain he allegation of the Admiral.

No subpoenas have been issued to Rear Admiral Sims or other officers on the retired list and beyond the punitive hand of the bureaucrats in the Navy Department or their allies among the "pork barrel" politicians of the Senate and House to come before the committee as witnesses.

No evidence has appeared of any desire by a majority of the committee to get at the truth of the conditions in the navy to which Admiral Magruder has called attention.

Instead of trying to get at the truth, several members of the House committee, active in cross-examination, seem to be bent chiefly on "getting" the Admiral.

Either Congress must order a probe of these charges by a special committee made up of Senators and Representatives from States having no navy yards, stations or hospitals, or the President must order such an investigation by a special board made up of retired officers and disinterested civilians.

AMOSKEAG MILLS TO CLOSE FOR CHRISTMAS

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Amoskeag Mills, including all departments, will close natur ly soon to open Tuesday morning, thus observing the usual Christmas recess.

Visitors are Welcome

Visitors are welcome at the Taylor Store and are treated with courtesy and consideration. It has always been our policy to show a friendly attitude toward those who visit the store. In fact, we have found it to be good business to greet people pleasantly, whether they come to buy or just look around.

Naturally we would like to sell to everyone who comes in. For selling is our business. But we know it is not possible. Experience has shown us that people will buy if they see what they like, so we do everything we can to make our furniture displays as attractive as we know how.

So we ask that you accept our invitation to come in. Your visit to the Taylor Furniture Store will be a compliment to us. If you like to look at beautiful furniture, come in, whether you are thinking of buying or not. We shall be glad to show you what you wish to see. And we shall not feel hurt if you do not buy.

ENLARGED JOINTS into Bunions Grow!

If you have an Enlarged Joint, don't think that you can get rid of it by ignoring it. Neglect causes Enlarged Joints to grow into Bunions, to become more painful and more unsightly.

Always famous for helpful shoes of every sort, the Coward stores have a number of types of Enlarged Joint Shoes for dress and for ordinary wear.

Here are some Oxfords, neat and attractive, yet with the inbuilt pocket to conceal and relieve the Enlarged Joint.

And shown here is the high boot with an inbuilt pocket to soothe the Enlarged Joint, and with comforting support for the arch. It will do much to bring the foot back to a normal condition.

JUNIOR LEAGUERS SELLING GREENS, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Making House-to-House Canvass to Raise Funds for "Little House"

JUNIOR LEAGUERS DISPOSING OF CHRISTMAS GREENS FOR "Little House" are a clever selling staff. Going on the precept—often proved true—that a cheery smile is first aid to successful salesmanship and open sesame to doors and purses—they are doing legal of smiles. And thus reap great rewards for "Little House." All yesterday and the day before, with true holiday "good deed" spirit, busy motors buzzed up and down smart thoroughfares and from door to door, each one expertly tooled and more than expertly staffed. Junior Leaguers far past the probationary period saw to that.

MISS BETTY MOULTON, MISS LOUISE BATCHELDER AND MRS. GARDNER COOLIDGE directed affairs from a headquarters in Marlborough street heaped up with wreathes and garlands fresh from the woods. Dispatching motors from this central point, each with a spicy load and a bevy of probationary Leaguers to do the selling, was merely child's play to these girls. All day long the motors went and came. Went all hung round with greens and returned with jingling coin.

MISS POLLY BEALE AND MISS NANCY AMES DID A THRIVING trade along Bay State road. Their motor was a beach wagon, festive as could be in its Christmas decorations. Up on "the Hill" there was an energetic staff and many sales. And moving generally through the section, a force to cover promising places, went a motor laden with wreaths and having Miss Mary Hatheway and Miss Essie Goodridge to move from house to house and collect a golden harvest. This is an annual effort for "Little House." And with the Junior League at the helm there's never any doubt as to financial outcome.

FEW THERE ARE WHO CAN RESIST THE LURE OF AN ANTIQUE collection. Certainly not Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, with several establishments which dirty groan with treasures, but who, nevertheless, dotes on acquiring "just one more" always. For her, a connoisseur, the Sacks' collection, set out at No. 52 Beacon street to benefit the Free Hospital for Women, is doubly a magnet, since it is a gem of rarity and beauty, and since the Free Hospital is to benefit. Mrs. Orcutt has done magnificently by that Institution in its present drive for funds. Her two drawing room talks netted a pretty penny for the cause.

MRS. ORCUTT IS JUST BACK IN SEASON FOR CHRISTMAS after two weeks in Washington. Her visit in the Capital was one fete after another, all more or less officially flavored, since she was a guest of Mrs. William Butler and that clique and enabled to see official wheels in their evolutions, always a fascinating process if one can be on the inside. Much gratification is Mrs. Orcutt's. Library officials here have asked her to repeat her talk on "The Madonna in Art" as part of the Library's course. Appreciation is always immensely satisfying, and this request caps the enormous success Mrs. Orcutt made with her two private readings.

WHILE MATER IS REAPING LITERARY LAURELS, WELL deserved, the younger Orcutts (Mr. and Mrs. Reginald) are finding that life in foreign metropolises is extremely to their liking. They have set up a Berlin establishment, as headquarters, and from it make jaunts hither and yon, over the Continent and into Asia Minor, as Mr. Orcutt's business necessitates. Mrs. Orcutt is the daughter of that foremost author, Basil King of Cambridge, and from him inherits a quite charming literary ability of her own. The Orcutt stay abroad is covering several months and much territory.

CHRISTMAS IN THE JOSEPH F. WOODS household is to be an unpretentious family celebration, centering round the youngest grandchild. Young Mr. and Mrs. "Joe" Woods, with their small daughter, merely go around the corner, from West Cedar street home to the paternal roof at No. 48 Chestnut street, for the holiday tree and dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sturgis, daughter and son-in-law, are at their Albany home and will not be on for the holidays. It is Mrs. Woods, senior, who is doing so much to make the exhibition at No. 52 Beacon street, for the Free Hospital, a success.

JUST AS CERTAINLY AS Christmas comes round Leighton Rollins can be counted upon to stage a most original holiday celebration. This year there is to be feasting, plays and impersonations at the Rollins home in Wellesley, called "The Homestead." In the enormous drawing room a stage is to be set up, and a Christmas fantasy produced, I believe Dan Tracy, budding playwright and youthful actor (he made a distinct success last Autumn at the Try-Out Theatre), wrote the fantasy, and clever amateurs are doing the parts. And the impersonations are in expert hands. So much for the entertainment.

AS FOR THE FEASTING, MR. ROLLINS oversees preparation for that and takes his inspirations from Merrie Olde England. A real old Yule dinner, a feast of proportions to make the board groan, is in the planning. There will be a boar's head, and a pigeon pie and a wassail bowl in keeping with the best traditions of the tight little island that has for these many years celebrated Yuletide so picturesquely. The Rollins homestead is more or less "open house" for these occasions, and Mr. Rollins, of course, crowds the place with as many friends as it will hold.

Leighton Rollins Engaged in Planning Elaborate Christmas Celebration

A CHARMING NEW YORKER IN WHOM BOSTON IS MUCH INterested is the attractive Miss Anne King Carley, daughter of Mrs. Orene King Carley of Gotham and Newport. Strolling down Park avenue of a morning, Miss Carley is the picture of radiant girlishness. A most extraordinary resemblance to Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., is hers, resulting in confusion to the social scribes in Newport of Summers and Gotham of Winters. Boston might have claimed this attractive Gothamite for its own had Mrs. King Carley's betrothal to Reginald Gray run its course to the altar and so to affiliation with Boston's best and bluest. But fate ruled otherwise.

NO NAVAL RACE FOR BRITISH

London, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The declaration that the British government has no intention of embarking upon an increase in its naval building program despite "the temporary failure" of the Geneva Naval Conference to reach a general agreement was the outstanding feature from the American point of view of King George's speech proroguing Parliament today.

A section of the speech dealing with allied war debts emphasized that the policy of the government was to limit its claims on the allies to such an amount as together with the reparations receipts would cover the government's own war debt obligations. It was brought out that war debt funding arrangements had been signed by Great Britain with all the countries concerned except Russia.

504 Shiver in Chicago Bread L... Longest Since J... No...

Chicago, ... 22 (A.P.).—Bread lines such as Chicago has not seen since 1913 are growing longer as Christmas nears and as Winter strikes with penetrating chill through the thin clad ranks of the jobless.

"Five hundred and four in the line yesterday," said Captain Fred T. Wilks of the Salvation Army. "Four hundred and eighty the day before and 400 before that. It's bigger every day as we get closer to Christmas.

"These are only single men we have down here. The family relief department has 150 a day."

"These men," said Captain Wilks, "could do skilled work if there were any to do. We can't find any jobs, and the government agency thinks it has had a good day if it finds four jobs."

Work to be done includes renewing of boilers and boiler tubes, and general engine room maintenance work; hull maintenance and general overhauling of deck and steward departments. The Shipping Board has appropriated more than $288,0... for the work.

U. S. TO REOPEN MEXICAN CLAIMS

WASHINGTON WON'T ACCEPT REPARATIONS RULING

The date for the next open committee meeting is not settled because three members are on the famous committee for Senator Jones of New Mexico and will be away for several days.

U. S. to Reopen Claims Case Against Mexico

Washington, Dec. 22.—The United States government has decided to demand reopening of the famous Santa Isabel case in the hope that ample justice will provide some compensation for the dependents of the fifteen American mining engineers brutally tortured and foully murdered on Mexican soil.

Rodrigo Octavio of Brazil, "neutral" arbitrator, to whom the Mexican government ordered a payment of $100,000, according to the Mexican documents laid before the senate committee by the Hearst newspapers has retired from the Mexican-American claims commission after rendering a decision against the American claimants which the American government has denounced as "completely repugnant.

More than $500,000,000 in claims are involved in the cases brought in behalf of Americans who were murdered, persecuted or suffered the loss of their property during the Mexican revolutionary horrors between 1910 and 1920.

ENGINEERS UNARMED.

Judge Ernest B. Perry of Nebraska was appointed as the American judge to pass upon the special claims. The Mexicans named F. Gonzlez Roa. Rodrigo Octavio, of Brazil, was chosen as the "neutral" arbitrator.

The United States Government presented as its first claim to that board the case of the fifteen American mining engineers, who had returned to Mexico to resume mining operations at the request of the Mexican government, who were assured of complete military protection by General Carranza, but who were later dragged from their train near Santa Isabel, robbed of their clothing and, as Judge Perry described it, "stabbed, bayoneted cut with knives, shot and killed."

"They were unarmed, defenseless and unable to make any defense," said Judge Perry.

"They were not profiteers seeking to exploit Mexico. They were not unwelcome foreigners forcing themselves upon Mexico. They were human beings returning to Mexico at the urgent request of the Mexican government to revive an industry which would enable the Mexican people to eat and live."

SOUGHT OUT AMERICANS.

The forces which went through the train carefully sought out Americans alone as their victims, according to Judge Perry, and, as they dragged the fifteen engineers from the train shouted: "Tell Wilson to come and save you now."

The Santa Isabel victims' dependents filed claims for about $1,200,000, and their case was presented to the commission of three for settlement because from the American viewpoin it was manifestly so just and would establish the basis upon which future claims could be settled.

Judge Perry found himself voting alone for it. Octavio and Roa voted together against it.

The case was decided adversely to the United States on April 24, 1926.

Among the Mexican papers now before the Senate committee is an order for the payment of $100,000 to Carlos J. Berenger, "to be delivered by him to his excellency, Senor Don Rodrigo Octavio, as a recompense for his good services to Mexico." The order was dated on September 9, 1925.

Congressman James A. Gallivan of Massachusetts has charged in a speech made by him in the House that President Calles made a gift of very valuable jewelry to the family of the Brazilian. Perry declined to accept the finding.

ASK NEW ARBITRATOR.

With the retirement of Octavio from the commission, the United States and Mexico will attempt to agree on some neutral arbitrator as his successor. The Santa Isabel case is the only one yet presented to the commission.

In the General Claims Commission, where a different neutral served, the United States has fared much better. Claims amounting to more than $1,000,000 have been settled in favor of Americans and of about $35,000 in favor of Mexicans.

In his decision against the United States, Octavio ruled that the murder of the fifteen Americans was committed by Villistas, that Villa was solely a bandit and that in order to be recompensed for the acts of banditry the Americans must prove that the Mexican government made no effort to apprehend bandits and was lenient with them.

Judge Perry asserted that Octavio in deciding against the American claims, held that Villa ceased to be a revolutionist and became a bandit nine days before the Santa Isabel murders.

There is said to be nothing in the records to show when Villa ceased to be a bandit and again became a revolutionist, the status which the Mexican government formally admitted was his in the 1920 treaty with Obregon.

Sheffield Is Called in Mexican Bribe Probe

Washington, Dec. 22.—The special Senate committee investigating Mexican documents published in the Hearst newspapers prepared to check thoroughly the testimony of Robert H. Murray, New York representative of the Bank of Mexico, who linked the names of several American residents of Mexico City with alleged forged documents.

A number of witnesses will be given an opportunity to appear to refute the testimony of Murray, who was formerly the Mexico City correspondent of the New York World, when the inquiry is resumed after the Christmas holidays.

Among them will be James R. Sheffield, former American ambassador to Mexico. Murray testified that he had heard the American embassy in Mexico City was a "generous purchaser" of documents from Miguel R. Avila, who aided in procuring the documents for the Hearst newspapers.

ACCUSES CORRESPONDENT.

Members of the committee were informed that Joseph W. De Courcy, former Mexico City correspondent of the New York Times, was en route to Washington from San Antonio, Texas, and will testify on his arrival here. De Courcy was accused by Murray of having forged a document in Mexico City, in which he (Murray) was charged with being in the pay of the Mexican government as a propagandist.

Boy, 17, Will Die in Chair Jan. 6 for 2 Ohio Murders

Columbus, O., Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—Seventeen-year-old Floyd Hewitt must die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary January 6, as atonement for killing Mrs. Celia Brown and her five-year-old son, Fred, Jr., in Conneaut last February.

The Ohio Supreme Court, which has refused to review Hewitt's case, today set Jan. 6 as the date for his execution.

VANDALS STRIP CHRISTMAS TREE OF ITS BEAUTIES

South Windham, Me., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Vandals, thought to be adults, stripped 150 electric light bulbs, wires and branches from a community Christmas tree erected for outdoor exercises Saturday. The culprits, for whom a reward has been offered, broke into a fire department house to get an axe. The community club plans to place an other tree for the exercises.

MYSTERY PLANE STIRS NAHANT

A mystery plane, "cracked up" on Little Nahant Beach, Nahant, gave the police considerable worry today when they were unable to identify either the ship or the fliers who had been its occupants.

According to a small boy, the plane whistled in from over the water after dark last night, barely made the beach, cracked its landing gear and nosed over, smashing the propeller.

Two men bustled out of the ship and hurried away, the boy said.

Today the police found not a drop of gasoline in the tanks and it is believed the plane came in with a "dead stick." It bears the number 923 and has a Liberty motor.

QUINN DEMANDS THUG'S ARREST

out kill to the end that the man be put behind the bars.

"A big influence of citizens would be the answer," he added.

The police commissioner said he cannot know definitely of police movements and is careful to see the street is deserted as he works.

Still suffering great pain from the wounding of his assistant, Miss Richardson told the story of the attack this morning.

"I had left my home in a hurry to keep an appointment at the home of a girl friend on Pleasant street," she began.

"As I turned into Upton street from Magazine street, I noticed a man behind me.

"I thought nothing of that until he seemed to quicken his pace as I did. In a short time he passed me.

FEARED STABBING.

"When he was a scant five steps in front of me, he whirled around, bowed his head like a goat and dove at me.

"He struck me a terrible blow over the heart, doubling me up. As I fell he struck me again and again, perhaps six times all together.

"My only intent was that he might stab me and my fear overwhelmed me. I would have screamed but my jaws seemed frozen shut.

"I was grasping my purse by its strap as I walked, but I did not notice his snatching it out of my hand. I was too frightened to observe anything. Perhaps I had been afraid. I don't know.

"Anyway, the first thing I noticed after I fell was my attacker's form rushing into the darkness of a vacant lot on Walnut street. My purse was gone.

GIVES DESCRIPTION.

"The man was well dressed in new or recent, of box tailored gray mixture, and new gray cap gave him a natty appearance. He was clean. I am sure from the glimpse I got of his skin but he was more mulatto-like than negro.

"He was about five feet four inches tall and unusually broad shouldered and stocky. It was the breadth of his shoulders that made me notice him first.

"His cap was pulled down as a mask, and as he turned to hit me he buried his face in his coat, so that I did not get a look at his features.

"He walked with a sort of roll, as if he owned the street, it appeared to me."

EASTMAN'S AMBITION IS TO KILL ELEPHANT

Paris, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—To bag an elephant at last was the fondest hope expressed by George Eastman camera manufacturer of Rochester, N. Y., during the first of the few days he intends to spend in Paris before starting on a big game hunt in British East Africa.

"I have shot all kinds of big game in the United States, British Columbia and Africa, except elephants," he said. "I have never killed one of them yet, but I hope the first trip. Should I meet lions and tigers I expect to shoot them also, but upper most in my mind is the elephant."

CAPTURE YOUTH IN AUTO CHASE

A wild auto chase through East Cambridge streets ended today at Third and Monroe streets, when a pursued machine overturned and Lieutenant Peter "Tobey" Lyons, driver of the pursuing car, leaped out and pounced on the youth scrambling out of the wreck.

He gave his name as George Parker, 17, of New York, formerly of Cambridge. Police informed him that he answered the description of a youth for whom the Cambridge police were asked to watch by Boston.

Officer Lyons was cruising in a car in an attempt to stamp out reckless driving and chose as his victim the last youth of those he wanted when both cars sped by faster and faster.

Louis Parker said he came from New York early today in an auto the has that burned at Mineola.

WOMAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Worcester, Dec. 22.—Mrs. Eva B. Mrs. Hart was forty-four years old and worked for Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Lasell. Hart was taken to Whittinsville Hospital suffering from a broken shoulder and probable internal injuries.

WET G. O. P. FOR STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA

Bismarck, N. D. Dec. 22 (A.P.)—A movement for a wet Republican party in North Dakota is under way and a meeting of all state politics will be called January 9.

This was announced today by C. P. Stone, president of the North Dakota Better Government Association, who said the decision had been reached by the association's executive committee.

A platform and a State ticket will be selected to be known as the wet Republican party of North Dakota. Wet candidates for delegates to the Republican National Convention also will be entered, Stone said.

Mayor Bauer Santa to 8 Boy Owners of Unlicensed Dogs

Mayor Bauer of Lynn played Santa Claus to eight boy dog-owners today, buying them licenses, as he had promised, and a crowd of nearly 100 other boys with their pets were on hand to see the fun.

The crowd didn't worry the Mayor at all. Meeting the boys on the steps of City Hall, he first paid out $21 for licenses and then invited all the rest, dogs included, to inspect the building under his guidance.

The Lynn Mayor had promised to buy licenses the first ten boys to appear with unlicensed dogs, but of the large crowd, only eight were unlicensed.

'Hell and Maria Plane' In White House Hop

Washington, Dec. 22 (A.P.)—A miniature White House and a brand new set of Senate rules were found by Vice-President Dawes today in his Christmas stocking which had been filled by the Senate pages.

The gifts were received by Mr. Dawes with obvious pleasure at his annual dinner to the pages and Senate employes which was given today in the Senate office building.

The new rules of the pages ban the Vice-President absolutely from ever Senate debate. In addition to the miniature White House, the pages related a thrilling story of a mountain flight by Mr. Dawes from the Capitol to the White House in his plane "Hell and Maria."

SEES HUB AS FOURTH U.S. CITY

The true position of Boston as "fourth city" of the United States is shown not only by the population figures for the metropolitan district, but also by its volume of banking business, the News Bureau says today.

"Among the large cities of the United States Boston now ranks fourth in point of population, a position it has held for a number of years. New York leads by a large margin, but Chicago is a good second. Philadelphia is third and Boston fourth, as follows:

Chicago	$2,900,000,000
Philadelphia	2,300,000,000
Boston	2,150,000,000

No other city has approximately as much as 40 per cent of Boston's total. The figures given are for the final ten months of 1927.

BOSTON BIG INCREASE

The arithmetical gain on Boston alone is greater amounts to $64,000,000, while most other cities have actually decreased, some of them very largely. Only New York and Chicago reported greater increases than Boston, and no other city even approached the Boston figure.

"There is no question but that Boston is a widespread financial power, not confined to its home as well as elsewhere. Like Boston for many years has been one of the financially conservative cities of the country. It has not been subject to violent fluctuations, and has been a steady, consistent, conservative banking center."

WHAT CENSUS SHOWS

"There is no question that the Federal census figures are more than a little out of line. In the case of Boston, for example, the census figures show a decrease of 1.8 per cent in population, while the banking figures show an increase of 14.8 per cent. Boston has been a steady, consistent, conservative banking center. It has not been subject to violent fluctuations, and has been a steady, consistent, conservative banking center."

Except that on the census of 1920 the city gained five per cent, it would have about Boston based on Boston chooses to retain its municipal independence. Last year, for the first time in many years, Boston today ranks in comparison with the other cities of the nation as a city of 800,000 instead of one of 1,000,000 people in reality. Boston is fourth city by a wide margin."

O'REILLY'S DAUGHTER ON STAND

"Unfortunately my father was a poet, not a rum-runner," said Mary Boyle O'Reilly, daughter of the late John Boyle O'Reilly, testifying in her suit against Edward H. Frye of Auburndale in Middlesex Superior Court.

The chief point in answer to questions by her counsel, James H. Vahey, as to whether she could abide by a [illegible] for a home at No. [illegible] Auburndale, of which Miss O'Reilly was a tenant.

She was subpoenaed to prove that Frye [illegible] of or even agreed to sell the property, and to compel him to give up to Agnes [illegible] $5,000 in payments he at one time owed its assessed value, $30.

A feature of the hearing was the contention by Frye that he made a written agreement while under the mental control of Miss O'Reilly, and that it was all dated.

Another feature was the cooperation between Attorney Vahey and Frye's counsel, J. Walter Tuttle of Framingham, who is blind. Attorney Vahey frequently read documents and letters for his opponent.

Miss O'Reilly testified she let Frye of her rooms to return to the flats, Westminster to live, she said.

"I, too, was going into my house rent free."

Frye also testified, claimed to have been a friend of her father, and for that reason was anxious to assist Miss O'Reilly. He said she refused to accept his offer but when he fixed the rent at $40 a month, she acceded to it. The witness also was asked if he had the right to [illegible] and [illegible] from the rent. She said he had spent $1,000 on repairs of [illegible] but that amount [illegible] was not [illegible] on condition with the purchase of the house.

Miss O'Reilly testified she moved in on December 1, 1926, and thereafter on several occasions asked Frye for a lease and the right to purchase. February 14, 1926, in which Frye confirmed the oral agreement. This letter was previously introduced into evidence by others. Frye admitted having written it but claimed it was dictated to Miss O'Reilly while she had him under control.

The case was taken under advisement.

EASTERN ELEVENS PRACTICE ON COAST

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — THURSDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1927

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"MA STRIBLING doesn't intend to permit Ma Lindbergh to have things all her own way in this aviation business," piped Mr. Boston today. "I have just received a letter from Pa Stribling in which he tells me that beginning the first of the year the Stribling family will hop around the country by airplane.

"We have bought an airplane," writes Pa. "Trains are so stuffy and we are tired of bumming around the country in a big motor bus.

"Our boy Will will be the pilot of the plane. He's every bit as good a pilot as he is a boxer. Ma, Will and myself will make all of our hops by airplane.

"Gene Tunney went to the Dempsey fight in Philadelphia by airplane, but Will is the first fighter to keep to the air as his own pilot. After this month Will Maher will have nothing to do with booking Strib. The old firm of Ma, Pa and Will is going to do business again."

"THE Stribling family has showmanship," resumed Mr. Boston. "I always believed that the Ma and Pa end of the combination was responsible for much of the success gained by Strib. Ma, you know, always trained her boy for his fights and sat behind his corner while he was in action. Just before the bell, Strib would lean over and kiss Ma. He also kissed her after the bout, win, lose or draw.

"Pa acted as chief second and did the cooking. For a time the happy little family traveled around the country in a motor bus which attracted considerable attention.

"Somehow or other Cupid got into the act and shot one of his little arrows into Strib's heart. The result was that the young boxer married a Macon society girl. In the meantime he was beaten by a youngster.

"Naturally with his new wife Strib didn't have quite as much time for Ma and Pa. Maybe they didn't mind. At any rate it was later announced that Walt Maher who at the time also managed Tiger Flowers, would look after Strib's interests.

"The youthful Southerner soon traveled from coast to coast batting all comers but without Ma and Pa. He lacked his former color and ceased to be such a big box office attraction.

"I GUESS W. L., as they call Strib, has decided that Ma is the best trainer and Pa the most skilful of managers after all.

"Ma and Pa, theatrical people for years and with the gift of showmanship, probably thought up the airplane idea. It will get Strib a world of advertising and put the Stribling family on the front page once more.

"Pa intends to match Strib with heavyweights. The Georgian can lick the second and third raters, but he isn't classy enough for the head liners. When at his best, W. L. didn't rate with Paul Berlenbach, former light heavyweight champion. It was Punch 'Em Paul who proved that clever advertising, rather than first class ability, has been responsible for the rapid rise of W. L.

"Anyhow the next time the Stribling drop into town it will be by airplane. Unfortunately for Strib he won't be able to carry his pane along when he steps into the ring. It would be rather awkward trying to get a paste at a fighter if he were permitted to whirl around over head."

STRIBLING FLYING CIRCUS BETWEEN HOPS

FLYING FOR DOUGH Will be the program for Stribling family beginning New Year's. Billy Stribling, the scrapper and bread winner, has purchased an airplane and the barnstorming trips of the Stribling circus will be by air. It will enable them to get to the dough quicker. When Ma and Pa and Billy started to see America first and gather dough next they lit every 2 by 4 town with the main street upstairs. Their one night stand record would make McIntyre and Heath envious. In the picture at the left Bill is being served tea by his pretty wife. Below is the circus, Pa at left, Billy centre and Ma right. Mr Boston says today: "Ma and Pa, theatrical people for years and with the gift of showmanship, probably thought up the airplane idea. It will get Strib a world of advertising and put the Stribling family on the front page once more. Unfortunately for Strib he can't carry his airplane into the ring with him." So if a plane lands in your backyard and you hear somebody calling Ma don't mistake it for a lost sheep. It will be Billy Stribling getting in touch with his trainer.

PA STRIBLING — BILLY STRIBLING — MA STRIBLING

Tufts Eleven Books Game in Indiana

Tufts will play Butler University at Indianapolis, Indiana, it has been announced by Robert Holmes, football manager of the 1928 varsity eleven.

The game will be played November 24, the final game of the Tufts schedule, Butler University is one of the largest Christian denominational school in the West. It was founded in 1849 and has a co-educational student body of two thousand.

The one-year eligibility rule is very closely observed and thus Tufts will be on a par with the Western school in this respect. This is the first time in a number of years that any Tufts athletic team has gone West to meet any opponent.

ANDOVER LOSES TWO CAPTAINS

Andover, Dec. 22.—Andover will be without the services of two sport captains when the school opens in January. John Rosenfield, hockey leader, Harold Harris, basket-ball captain, are down in their studies.

Rosenfield has been on the hockey team for three years and this is the first time he has been ineligible.

Captain Harris was ineligible last Winter for the greater part of the schedule, but passed off his condition two weeks before the Exeter game which he materially helped to win. Harris' loss is the greater, only two other veterans are in the school.

Sheno Collins to Manage Pittsfield

Pittsfield, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—John "Sheno" Collins of this city, former Chicago and Boston American League outfielder, has signed to manage the Pittsfield baseball club of the Eastern League. He succeeds William C. Whitman of Philadelphia.

Collins managed the Des Moines club of the Western League for the last two seasons, winning the pennant in 1926 and finishing third in 1927.

Belanger Must Box Genaro First

New London, Ct., Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—Frenchy Belanger, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the new flyweight champion, must fight Frankie Genaro of New York before meeting Corporal Izzy Schwartz for the undisputed right to the title.

This ruling was given by Thomas E. Donohue, president of the N. B. A. Schwartz is recognized as champion by the New York Boxing Commission.

HOLY CROSS AND YALE ARRANGE INDOOR MEET

Holy Cross will meet Yale in a dual track and field meet at New Haven, Feb. 11. The meeting is the first of its kind ever arranged between the colleges and is apt to become a permanent affair.

Yale and Holy Cross have had a long series of baseball games and Yale is anxious to get the Purple back on the football list. In the coming indoor games the following list of events will be held: 40-yard dash, 300-yard run, 65-yard run 1,000-yard run, mile run, varsity and freshmen relays at one mile, pole vault and high jump.

OLYMPIC SPRINTER AND TEN OTHERS DIE IN FIRE

Warsaw, Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—Eleven persons, including Alfred Freyer, Poland's crack Olympic sprinter, were killed in a fire today which destroyed the ancient castle of Count Zdzislaw at Dzikow, near Jaroslaw. Eleven persons were injured. The castle contained the most famous art gallery in Poland.

Medford High Track

Medford High School track candidates will receive their first competition this afternoon at the interclass meet in the school gym.

KEN NASH IS TO COACH AGAIN AT TUFTS

Judge Kenneth L. Nash has been reappointed baseball coach at Tufts for the coming season and has accepted the appointment, it was announced by Professor Clarence P. Houston, director of athletics at Tufts College.

This news will be received with pleasure by the alumni of the college since Tufts has maintained itself well in the front in collegiate baseball ever since Judge Nash's advent several years ago.

The 1928 baseball schedule was announced by Manager Savage as follows:

April 11, Lowell Textile at Tufts; 14, Springfield at Tufts, 17, Northeastern at Tufts, 18, University of Vermont at Tufts, 20, Yale University at New Haven; 23 Bates at Tufts.

May 2 Boston University at Tufts; 5, Rhode Island State at Tufts; 9, New Hampshire at Durham; 12, Middlebury at Tufts; 16, Bates at Lewiston; 19, M. I. T. at Tufts; 23, Holy Cross at Worcester; 26, Williams at Williamstown.

June 2 Open; 6 Seton Hall at Tufts, 9 Univers ty of New Hampshire at Tufts, 13 Dartmouth at Tufts; 16, Harvard at Tufts.

HORNSBY FREED OF DEBT CLAIM

St. Louis, Dec. 22.—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the World Champion Cardinals last year, and now captain of the New York Giants, was freed of all horse-race debt claims in the suit brought by Frank L. Moore, ex-Connecticut betting commissioner, for $36,275.

A jury in Circuit Court brought in the decision relieving the ball player of paying the money alleged by lost in horse-race bets.

The decision was not unanimous, only 10 out of 12 jurors signing the verdict. The verdict completely removes any liability on the part of Hornsby for the accumulation of bets.

The ball player and Mrs. Hornsby, who is ill, had left the room when the verdict was returned.

The verdict in favoring Hornsby took the view that Moore and Hornsby were gambling jointly, and that the debts are, therefore, inadmissible.

Drummer Letters

Among the football players awarded letters at Dummer Academy were Capt. William Bottger and Lawrence Palmer of Winchester; Russell and Richard Crosby of Norwood; Henry Hill, Sidney Levin, Emmett LaCrosse, Charles Buechner and Carl Pedersen of Swampscott.

Coveleskie to Go South With Yanks

New York, Dec. 22 (I.N.S.).—Stanley Coveleskie, who has been kept out of harness by a sore arm since coming to the New York Yankees from the Washington Senators, may be one of New York's regular pitchers next season.

The Yankee officials [illegible] that the star spitball pitcher has recovered and will be taken South with the team next Spring. He is not yet signed by the Yanks, but is [illegible] given a contract if he can make a comeback.

The big Pole from Shamokin, Pa. formerly was one of the most effective pitchers in the American League. Jim Wilson, right-hand pitcher sent to Buffalo on option by the Yanks last year, has been returned to Buffalo under the option. Charleston, Statesman.

LITTLE COLLEGES LIKE TWO-TEAM FOOTBALL IDEA

Chicago, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Despite the argument that the two-team football plan advocated by [illegible] Ten is not suitable for [illegible] small student bodies, the idea has spread to the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference, or the "Little Ten," composed of smaller [illegible] Illinois Colleges at Jacksonville announced that it will have two teams in action next season.

ST. ALPHONSUS WANTS BASKETBALL GAMES

The strong St. Alphonsus has a few open dates in its schedule and it would like to fill them with the fastest semi-pro teams in the State. The team prefers games away from home.

Any team wishing to meet the Saints can write to Manager Pete Ryan, care of the St. Alphonsus Athletic Association, Dorchester.

Scott Praises Fans; Raps Referees

Southampton, Eng., Dec. 22. (A.P.).—Phil Scott, the Bronx [illegible] weight, thinks that American boxing fans are real sportsmen but [illegible] thinks about American referees is something different.

Arriving here today aboard the Berengaria from his recent boxing engagements in the United States, Scott contended that he won every round of his bout with Johnny Risko of Cleveland and that the spectators were with him even though he lost the decision.

"The only way to win over there is to knock them out," Scott said.

The British heavyweight, who lost two and won one match in his American invasion, plans to return [illegible] next Spring.

Pick of Mushers in N. E. Sled Dog Race

North Conway, N. H., Dec. 22.—The pick of Canadian and American mushers are expected to enter the New England sled dog race here [illegible] and 11.

Leonard Seppala, hero of the famous dash to Nome, Alaska, with diphtheria anti-toxin and winner of the New England race last year, has arrived at Poland Spring, Me., and has begun training.

DRAFT IS HELP TO PLAYERS, SAYS BARNARD

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 22 (A.P.).—Judge E. S. Barnard now head of the American League believes the universal draft agreement has [illegible] the majors and [illegible] the one right of the baseball [illegible] to advance in his profession [illegible] adequate compensation [illegible] as a player.

Barnard, head of the Cleveland baseball [illegible] here for a few days attending meetings of baseball [illegible] meetings in New York and Chicago, predicted that 1928 will prove the greatest year in baseball [illegible] advocating the universal draft, which was discarded by the minor leagues after the passage of considerable [illegible] Barnard declared that "fans and even sport writers do not understand the draft and therefore get the wrong impression.

"The right of a ball player to advance in his profession and secure adequate compensation is one of the cornerstones of organized baseball and should always remain as such.

"At the present time with the draft in effect there are [illegible] that [illegible] the right of selection [illegible] advance [illegible] player. FEDERAL COURT GETS FIGHT CASE

Chicago, Dec. 22 (A.P.).—The Rev. Elmer Williams today carried [illegible] for a public accounting of the $2,000,000 gate receipts of the Jack Dempsey championship [illegible] here and a decision on the boxing [illegible] ing Boxing Field for private [illegible] terprises, to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Just prior to the bout last September, the Rev. Mr. Williams, a resident worker, sought an injunction in Federal District Court to prevent the boxers, South Park Board, [illegible] control of the field, and promoters from holding the match.

Judge George A. Carpenter denied the petition. Today's action is an appeal from Judge Carpenter's ruling.

CURLING SEASON OPENS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The first curling dinner of the season was held at The Country Club, following six matches, the first of the series. The two best matches of the program were the Haughton Pfeifer and Bancroft-Patersan matches. Both were won by the same score, 11-10, Haughton and Paterson being the victors.

BRUINS NOW SHY PLAYERS

Passing of Popular Jimmie Herbert Leaves Big Gap in Local Hockey Team

By BILL GRIMES.

With the passing of Jimmie Herberts, who was sold to the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Bruins have lightened the duties of Manager Art Ross, but they have lost the services of one of the greatest hockey players in the game.

Herberts was a star of the first water and was the highest paid player ever to don a Bruin uniform. For four years, or since the team was organized in the N. H. L., he was a mainstay of the club. He was sometimes a thorn in the flesh of the opposing players, but he was a star performer, and none of the foes would be sorry to see Herberts out of the fray, much less the fans.

He was also a most consistent scorer, year in and year out on C. P. A. basis. He was a sensational, hard-fighting player and a fierce attacker, but as with the temperament of most of the clever players, he was high strung as well as skilled and often annoyed that Herberts had been turned over to the Toronto outfit, he was well known around the Arena that Manager Ross was through with Herberts two weeks ago.

The Bruins' manager has been complaining about the lack of "fight" all season and just before the squad departed for Montreal for the last Hornets' game he declared he was on the market and he said he would not go to Pittsburgh, but make up to Detroit or Toronto.

BRUINS SHORT HANDED.

"I don't care if we never win another game," declared Manager Art Ross upon his return from Montreal and through with the season.

Either he does or I do. I put up with more from that team than any club ever had.

The departure of Herberts leaves the Bruins short handed, although the latter has been counted from the Bruins' roll. The Hornets have been a head of the Bruins all season and Pittsburgh may continue to pay the Bruins a visit or two, and Lester Patrick, manager of Minneapolis team, would like to get Herberts.

But now it would not be a bad idea to get the latter in the game as he could be counted on to step in to emergency cases and help out in a pinch.

If Herberts can be established with Johnny and Wilson playing with Boston, Clancy, Cook and Herberts would be a hot line. Clancy is a fine defensive player and Cook is a fine forward. Last season Herberts and Wilson were a fine pair of forwards and Johnny Wilson was considered one of the best defensive players in the game.

IN SOFT DIVISION.

Short sighted and in a fine spot as second in the league standings the Bruins have let the first place Montreal Canadiens get away from them. Now they are in the soft division of the league and will probably remain there.

Why the Bruins were allowed to get into the soft division is a question that has been asked many times. Last season the Bruins were in the fight for first place right down to the last game of the season. This season they have been in the soft division all season.

GEORGE McLEOD MEETS ROGACKI HERE TONIGHT

George McLeod has finished his training for the match to be staged at the Quincy Opera House tonight when he meets Tony Rogacki in the main bout of the evening. McLeod has been working hard and has taken on all comers in order to get in shape for the battle tonight and Trainer Eddie Powers of the Quincy lad is confident that his charge will be in the best of condition when he enters the ring.

McLeod has been training at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and has been taking the day off. He will leave for Boston this afternoon and will go to the Quincy Opera House from there. Rogacki has been training at the Boston Y. M. C. A. and will leave for Quincy this afternoon. The bout tonight will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock and Leon Buchanan will referee all bouts.

GRID STAR ENRAGED OVER MARRIAGE REPORT

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 22 (A P)—Pressed for a statement regarding the report that he was married today in Mexico City, Harold (Red) Grange, former University of Illinois football star, refused to make any comment. Grange's wife, who was Miss Dorothy Kelly, of Wheaton, Ill., was reported to have left Urbana last night for Mexico City.

Harrington Plays Last Game for Tigers

Hago Harrington, star left wing of the New Haven Eagles, will play his last game for the Canadian-American League team tomorrow night against the Boston Tigers at the Arena. Harrington has been recalled by President J. F. Adams of the Boston Bruins and will join the "pros" after tomorrow night's game.

True to prediction in the game here a week ago, Hago Harrington, the Melrose boy on left wing for New Haven, skated wild against the Tigers, scoring two goals and passing for two more to give New Haven its total of four goals in the 4 to 2 victory over the Tigers.

Coach Eddie Powers of the Tigers has switched his line-up, Jack Shutts, Dave Shute, to get on Harrington's trail tomorrow night and stay there. Harrington did not have much success playing against Taylor last season and the Melrose boy believes he can hold Hago scoreless in the game. It will be Harrington's final game before he reports to the Bruins.

In the last New Haven game to Tigers carried on without the leading hand of Eddie Powers. The Tigers could not get on defense and the Canadian border because of missing an offside. Little was to be found between Hago and Art Ross, leading Tiger team was to fall for the

New Haven has some other stars too in Lloyd Andrews, Len Monahan, two of the former Boston College stars, Lapointe, Bilodeau and Oscar Kinghorn.

Ted Osborn is 24 years old and played amateur hockey in Niagara Falls.

GIVES UP SATURDAY NIGHT.

Staging this game on Friday night instead of Saturday has met with the approval of the Hockey Game Manager George W. Brand has made it a rule never to send out a game the night before the actual game should be played. Witness the Canadian championship hockey match and the big one hour of contest necessary after the game is over.

It is a real Christmas bargain of which many of the young folks will take advantage.

QUEBEC HERE MONDAY.

The Quebec Boxers will be back here Christmas night to play the Tigers. Hockey fans know what to expect when these bitter rivals clash. The last game here a week ago between these teams was filled with action.

Coach Lalonde the Augustus mainstay of the Quebec Frenchmen is confident that his Boxers will take Boston's measure in this battle. And the local lad is back with two a perfect record for Christmas time.

PASSING THE PUCK

By Bill Grimes

Leland "Hago" Harrington has been recalled by the Bruins from New Haven. Hago will play his final game for New Haven tomorrow night at the Arena against the Tigers. He was farmed out to New Haven a year ago, but he has developed so rapidly that Manager Art Ross demanded his return.

When the Bruins had Hago Harrington, Jimmie Herberts and Cooney Weiland on the first string line, they had the best combination playing left wing that ever wore the colors of the local team. Harrington was the first of the line to depart, but he was soon followed by Cooney, and now Jimmie Herberts has departed from here.

Harrington will strengthen the Bruins. He is one of the greatest wing shots in hockey. He has gathered considerable experience while playing with New Haven, and during the season and a half he has been in the Canadian American League he has shown himself to be the best wing man in that organization.

Harrington will report to the Bruins at the Arena tomorrow night and will be in the line-up against the Tigers. He will be given a chance to show what he can do, and if he makes good he will be kept with the Bruins. If he does not make good he will be sent back to New Haven.

Harrington is a right shot and will be used on the left wing. He is fast and a good stickhandler. He is a good shot and will be a valuable addition to the Bruins' attack.

Harrington is a native of Melrose and is 24 years old. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 170 pounds. He is a graduate of Melrose High School and played hockey there for three years. He then played with the Melrose Athletic Club for two years before joining the New Haven team.

Harrington is a good skater and has a fine shot. He is a good stickhandler and has a fine shot. He is a good skater and has a fine shot. He is a good stickhandler and has a fine shot.

$50,000 PAID FOR CONTRACT

Originally Cost Reilly Only $900 for Jack Delaney; Joe Jacobs New Pilot

New York, Dec. 22.—More frenzied finance in boxing has developed in New York boxing circles.

The contract for the management of Jack Delaney, ex-world's light heavyweight champion, which originally cost Pete Reilly only $900 four years ago, has been purchased by Joe Jacobs of New York for $50,000.

The deal, announced jointly by Jacobs and Reilly after new contracts had been drawn at the offices of the State Athletic Commission also included the transfer of the management of Sammy Vogel, New York lightweight. Jacobs, however declared Delaney was worth the whole price. Delaney's new contract with Jacobs has two years to run, while Vogel's has three.

Delaney, who relinquished the light heavyweight crown several months ago to cast his lot among the heavies, will be pushed forward as a challenger for Gene Tunney's title, Jacobs declared. A match with the winner of the prospective Shar key-Heany battle will be sought.

Although Reilly paid only $900 for Delaney's services originally he paid $15,000 for the fighter's contract little less than three years after having released him. Delaney meanwhile had sprung into prominence, knocking out Paul Berlenbach.

Under Reilly's management the French-Canadian progressed rapidly winning the 175-pound title in July, 1926, from Berlenbach, knocking out Mike McTigue and twice putting the late Tiger Flowers to sleep.

Reilly announced his retirement from boxing, at least temporarily, to devote his time to other business interests. Jacobs already has a group of boxers, including Frankie Genaro, Eddie Wagner, Jack McVey and Joe Glick.

REAL ROYALTY OF THE COURTS

MRS. J. D. CORBIERE MRS. GEORGE W WIGHTMAN

ALTHOUGH IT IS DOUBTFUL IF A UNITED STATES TENNIS TEAM Is entered in the next Olympic competition it is interesting to know that were one selected New England might be well represented. At left in this picture is Mrs. J. D. Corbiere of Southboro and at right is Mrs. George W. Wightman of Brookline, two outstanding local stars.

N. E. District Could Furnish Players for Olympic Tennis

This is the sixth of a series of articles on New England athletes who may represent the United States in the 1928 Olympic games.

By JOE CASHMAN

As we delve further and further into the Olympic situation, the more we doubt whether the United States will be represented at Amsterdam in anything except track and field and figure skating competition.

We were forced to consider New England's chances of representation in soccer without knowing whether this country will enter an eleven, while it is admitted that the entrance of a U. S hockey team is unlikely.

And today we study the tennis situation only to find that we are working under the handicap of not being certain that a team will be sent abroad next July.

Several of the tennis authorities in the section of the country have been informed as yet that the United States will enter a team in fact they have been unofficially told not to count aggregation will journey to the 1928 games.

However, the fact that the net representatives of this country made a clean sweep of first places at the last Olympiad and helped materially to bring victory to this country in the meet, may result in a change of heart on the part of the Olympic Committee as regards the entry of a tennis team.

Should a team be sent abroad New England's chances of representation on it would be slim.

On the net-wielding contingent that carried the Stars and Stripes onto the courts in 1924 and walked off with laurels in the men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles were three New England women, by birth or adoption. Mrs. George W. Wightman, captain of the team Miss Edith Sigourney and Mrs. Marion Jessup.

According to present indications though, none of these three players would make the trip if a team is picked in 1928, and there are few if any, players available in New England to take their places.

MRS. WIGHTMAN, no doubt, would be one of the first to be picked if a team were named but the Brookline woman would decline the invitation.

She has a young family and would not leave them to engage in Olympi tennis.

Mrs. Wightman's absence will be keenly felt if the United States sends a tennis team to Amsterdam. In the last international games, she won the women's doubles paired with Helen Wills and the mixed doubles with R. Norris Williams as her partner.

Mrs. Wightman modestly declares that she probably wouldn't be considered good enough to endure in any more Olympic competition even though she desired to, but tennis experts declare she is still one of the best doubles players of her sex in the world.

The Brookline woman is one of the most remarkable figures in the history of the game, has been for the last twenty years. She was Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of California before her marriage to George W Wightman, a leading officer of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and won the first of her many national titles way back in 1905, when she was crowned singles champion.

She repeated her singles triumphs the following two years and then came back in 1919 to regain the title and as Mrs. Wightman she won it again in 1923 with Miss Sears and in 1924 with Helen Wills.

And just to prove her versatility she won the mixed doubles title in 1923 with Burnham Ball and in 1924 with William T. Tilden.

SINCE the last Olympics, she has done a lot of playing in this country and has added several national titles to her long list of championships, but most of her time has been spent in developing young girl players.

The most famous of her proteges are the four Palfrey sisters of Brookline, Polly, Mamie, Lee and Sarah.

These four girls, all of them still in their teens are regarded as the best girl net prospects in the country, Sarah in particular who though she is the youngest of the quartet, is rated as being the great set.

Many believe that if an Olympic team is selected, Sarah Palfrey will be considered, but Mrs. Wightman says she is far too young for such competition, so you can rest assured that the United States Lawn Tennis Association will take her opinion on the matter and have Sarah at home.

Mrs. Wightman expects that eventually all four Palfrey sisters will make the Olympic grade, but not until the 1932 games, at the earliest.

Such being the case, New England's two best prospects, Mrs Wightman and Sarah Palfrey, cannot be considered as Olympic tennis candidates.

And neither of the other two women who carried the hopes of this section in the last Olympics are likely to go again. Mrs. Jessup, who is columbia by New Rochelle because she was married Mrs. Helen of New ton before her marriage, did little playing last season, and the same holds true for Miss Sigourney, a Boston resident. Both are teams mates by virtue of their records of the players during the year previous.

THE New England women who would stand the best chance of being selected are Mrs. Alfred H Chapin of Springfield and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Southboro who finished one and two, respectively, in the New England ranking for 1927.

Both are very fine players and would strengthen any team but the selection of either would be overlooked. If it is finally decided to send a team to the Olympics Other prominent New England players from this section are Miss Margaret Blake of Dedham, Mrs. Hollis Cook of Boston, Miss Jeanne L. Mumford of Brookline Miss Rosamond Newton of Brookline, Mrs. Lewis Brewer of Boston, Mrs. Frank H Godfrey and Miss Virginia Roe.

The chances of [illegible] being picked over a team Mrs. Chapin or Mrs. Corbiere [illegible] are exceedingly slim.

Unless Mrs. Wightman changes her mind, and there is no indication that she intends to New England will probably have no women representatives on any U S Olympic tennis team that might be picked though there are some players in this section who would deserve to be named.

BRUINS NOW SHY PLAYERS

Passing of Popular Jimmie Herbert Leaves Big Gap in Local Hockey Team

By BILL GRIMES.

With the passing of Jimmie Herberts, who was sold to the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Bruins have lightened the duties of Manager Art Ross, but they have lost the services of one of the greatest hockey players in the game.

Herberts was a member of the first army of players to report to camp by Manager Ross four years ago, and he has been loyal to the Bruins in fair numbers and in great style. Many a time the homecomers would have to pass Herberts to get out of the ice, much less the rubber.

He was the most consistent scorer on any pro club in the C. P. H. A. last year. He was a sensational, third involving player and a fine attacker, besides what he accomplished on the defense and the rest of the time.

Although the fans were surprised as well as shocked when it was learned that Herberts had been turned over to the Toronto outfit, it was generally known around the Arena that Manager Ross was through with Herberts two weeks ago.

The Bruins' manager has been complaining about Herberts' condition all season and just before the second period started for Montreal last week, Herberts answered a call to report to the referee and on behalf of the team asked not to be permitted to make him go to Detroit or Toronto.

BRUINS SHORT HANDED.

"I don't care if we never win another game," declared Manager Art Ross upon his return from Montreal. "I am all through with Herberts. I treat he goes or I do. I have put up with more from him than from anyone I ever had."

The departure of Herberts leaves the Bruins short handed. According to the announcement it is the Bruins' office Herberts will join the local club in the Canadian Pacific city and will be given a chance at left defense. Herberts is a former Prince star and a product of Fort William and Moose Jaw teams.

Eddie Rowe and Wesley Hyde are the two players who will be given a chance to take Herberts' place at left defense. Rowe is a veteran of the Bruins' championship team of two years ago and Hyde is a product of the Bruins' farm team at Providence. Both are fast skaters and good stickhandlers, but neither has had any experience in the National League.

Manager Ross has been trying to get Herberts back into the game for the last two years, but he was unable to do so. Herberts was with the Montreal Canadiens when they won the championship in 1924 and was with the Montreal Maroons when they won the championship last year.

Herberts was born in Montreal and has been playing hockey for the last 15 years. He is married and has a family living in Montreal.

PASSING THE PUCK

By Bill Grimes

Leland "Hago" Harrington has been recalled by the Bruins from New Haven, Hago will play his final game for New Haven tomorrow night at the Arena against the Tigers. He was farmed out to New Haven a year ago, but he has developed so rapidly that Manager Art Ross demanded his return.

When the Bruins had Hago Harrington, Jimmie Herberts and Eddie Cooper on the first string line, they had the best combination playing. That ever wore the colors of Boston. Harrington was the first of this line to depart, but he was soon followed by Cooper, and now Jimmie Herberts has departed from here.

Harrington will strengthen the Bruins. He is one of the greatest wing stars in hockey. He has gotten considerable experience while playing with New Haven, and during the season and a half he has been in the Canadian American League he has shown himself to be the best wing man in that organization.

$50,000 PAID FOR CONTRACT

Originally Cost Reilly Only $900 for Jack Delaney; Joe Jacobs New Pilot

New York, Dec. 22.—More frenzied finance in boxing has developed in New York boxing circles.

The contract for the management of Jack Delaney, ex-world's light heavyweight champion, which originally cost Pete Reilly only $900 four years ago, has been purchased by Joe Jacobs of New York for $50,000.

The deal, announced jointly by Jacobs and Reilly after a new contracts had been drawn at the offices of the State Athletic Commission also included the transfer of the management of Sammy (Kid) Nova, New York lightweight. Jacobs, however declared Delaney was worth the whole price. Delaney's new contract with Jacobs has two years to run, while Vogel's has three.

Delaney, who relinquished the light heavyweight crown several months ago to cast his lot among the heavies, will be pushed forward as a challenger for Gene Tunney's title, Jacbos declared. A match with the winner of the prospective bear-Kingsley battle will be sought.

Although Reilly paid only $900 for Delaney's services originally he paid $15,000 for the fighter's contract little less than three years ago after having released him Delaney meanwhile had sprung into prominence, knocking out Paul Berlenbach.

Under Reilly's management the French-Canadian progressed rapidly, winning the 175-pound title in July, 1926, from Berlenbach, knocking out Mike McTigue and twice putting the late Tiger Flowers to sleep.

Reilly announced his retirement from boxing, at least temporarily to devote his time to other business interests Jacobs already has a group of boxers, including Frankie Genaro Eddie Wagner, Jack McVay and Joe Glick.

REAL ROYALTY OF THE COURTS

At left in this picture is Mrs. J. D. Corbiere of Southboro and at right is Mrs. George W. Wightman of Brookline, two outstanding local stars.

MALDEN AND NEWTON AGREE

The three-year football break between Malden and Newton was patched Although official announcement has not been made as yet, the teams will meet in 19.. and 1930.

Malden and Newton last clashed on the gridiron three years ago when Malden was a member of the Suburban League. However, when Malden quit the league with Medford, the school cancelled the annual game with Newton.

The first game in 1929 will be played in Newton with the second encounter taking place at Malden and the rivalry that marked the struggles between these two leading high schools is expected to blossom again.

The Medford High School football schedule for 1928 has been announced Four of the teams that were on the list last season have been dropped. B. C. High, Stoneham, Huntington School and New Hampton will no longer play at the Medford stadium.

Brockton and Fitchburg High Schools, who were among the leading elevens in the State, season are on the Medford schedule and should prove exciting attractions for the rabid Medford enthusiasts.

N. E. District Could Furnish Players for Olympic Tennis

This is the sixth of a series of articles on New England athletes who may represent the United States in the 1928 Olympic games.

By JOE CASHMAN

As we delve further and further into the Olympic situation, the more we doubt whether the United States will be represented at Amsterdam in anything except track and field and figure skating competition.

We were forced to consider New England's chances of representation in soccer without knowing whether this country will enter an eleven, while it is admitted that the entrance of a U. S hockey team is unlikely.

And today we study the tennis situation only to find that we are again working under the handicap of not being certain that a team will be sent abroad next July.

None of the ruling authorities in the section of the country have been informed as yet that the United States will send a team in fact, they have been unofficially told that no court aggregation will journey to the 1928 games.

However, the fact that the net representatives of a country made a clean sweep of first places at the last Olympiad and he had materially to bring victory to this country on the court, may result in a change of heart on the part of the Olympic Committee as regards the entry of a tennis team

Should a team be sent abroad, New England's chances of representation on it would be slim.

On the net-wielding contingent that carried the Stars and Stripes onto the courts in 1924 and walked off with laurels in the men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles, were three New England women, by birth or adoption Mrs George W. Wightman, captain of the team Miss Edith Sigourney and Mrs. Marion Jessup According to present indications though, none of these three players would make the trip if a team is picked in 1928, and there are few, if any, players available in New England to take their places.

MRS. WIGHTMAN, no doubt, would be one of the first to be picked if a team were named but the Brookline woman would decline the invitation.

She has a young family and would not leave them to engage in Olympiad sessions

Mrs. Wightman's absence will be keenly felt if the United States sends a tennis team to Amsterdam In the last international games, she won the women's doubles pairing with Helen Wills and the mixed doubles with R. Norris Williams as her partner

Mrs. Wightman modestly declares that she probably wouldn't be considered good enough to engage in any more Olympic competition even though she desired to, but tennis experts declare she is still one of the best doubles players of her sex in the world.

The Brookline woman is one of the most remarkable figures in the history of the game, has been for the past twenty years. She was Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of California before her marriage to George W Wightman, a leading official of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and won the first of the many national titles she has to her credit when she was crowned singles champion.

She repeated her singles triumphs the following two years and then came back in 1919 to regain the title ceded to Mrs Wightman.

She also won the doubles title in 1909 and 1911, being paired those years with Miss Hotch, and the last year Miss Sears a famous mixed doubles team, defeating Miss Sigourney and Mrs. Marion Jessup.

According to present indications though, none of these three players would make the trip if a team is picked in 1928, and there are few, if any, players available in New England to take their places.

SINCE the last Olympics, she has done a lot of playing in this vicinity and has added several sectional titles to her long list of championships, but most of her time has been spent in developing young girl players.

The most famous of her proteges are the four Fairfrey sisters of Brookline. Polly, Maxine, Lee and Sarah,

these four girls, all of them still in their teens are regarded as the best girl net prospects in the country, Sarah in particular who though she is the youngest of the quartet, is rated as being the great est.

Many believe that if an Olympic team is selected, Sarah Fairfrey will be considered, but Mrs. Wightman says she s far too young for such competition, as you can rest assured that the United States Lawn Tennis Association will take her opinion in the matter and leave Sarah at home

Mrs. Wightman expects that even tually all four Fairfrey sisters will make the Olympic grade, but not until the 1932 games, at the earliest

Such being the case, New England's two best prospects, Mrs. Wightman and Sarah Fairfrey, cannot be considered as Olympic tennis candidates.

And neither of the other two women who carried the hopes of this section in the last Olympics are likely to go again. Mrs. Jessup, who is claimed by New England because she was Marion Hardeman of Texas before her marriage, and late making last season, and the same holds true for Miss Sigourney, old resident, and she seems unlikely to head on the cards of the players during the year previous.

THE New England women who would stand the best chance of being selected are Mrs. Alfred H. Chapin of Springfield and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere in Southboro, who ranked one and two, respectively in the New England ranking for 1926.

Both are very fine players and would strengthen any team but the fact remains that they would be overlooked, if it is finally decided to send a tennis team to the Olympics Other prominent women players from this section are Miss Margaret Blake of Lenox Mrs. Edwin Westcott of Sweon, Miss Jessie Mumford of Brookline Miss Rosamond Newton of Springfield Mrs. Lewis Bremer of Providence Mrs. Frank B Godfrey and Miss Virginia Roe.

The chances of any of these being picked over either Mrs Chapin or Mrs Corbiere, though are exceedingly slim

Unless Mrs. Wightman changes her mind, and there is no indication that she intends to Now England will probably have no women representatives on any U S Olympic tennis team that might be picked though there are some players in this section who would deserve to be named.

AS far as the men players are concerned, there is not a chance in a thousand of any New England being picked

Arnold H. Jones, former Yale captain and number one in the New England ranking and Alfred H. Chapin, husband of Mrs Chapin are the only two men whose names can be mentioned as possibilities and they are not even probabilities

Consequently, as far as New England is concerned, it doesn't make a great deal of difference whether the United States enters a team in the Olympics or not, except that all true fans would like to see the country represented in all branches of competition possible.

TO avoid the risk of misquoting Ty I am going to set down the impressions which I gained, with the understanding that they may be tempered with the interpretation which I put upon Ty's words.

In the first place, a baseball player who has played enough golf to acquire a certain knack for it is inclined to hit a baseball upward if he hits it at all, and nearly always he will find himself popping out to the infield.

The reason for it's obvious for although the golfer should strive to get forward the ball before being on a plane with his feet instead of his wrists, he must develop a positive muscular reaction which will bring the club upward after he reaches the bottom of the swing.

The batter, on the other hand wants always to hit the ball on the ground or on a line if he hits right down he hits very far that is very long To the end, he has developed a swing that is more of a pushing short sharp blow to which there is none of the golfers supple wrist action and none of the flowing grace of Macdonald Smith's driving swing.

It is short and to the point, and if he lengthens his swing (if the way he would hit a golf ball, his control and placement must suffer.

Babe Ruth is the other type of batter. Ty declared. Though he has hurled no records since a great deal of his Ruth's batting is the result of a free swing and a long one, his swing is even as compact as a golfer's.

Now as all baseball fans know, Ty could do a man to the point where he was forced to see my self-confidence was shaken.

He said: "Watch the box scores and when you see a man who is not only a long hitter, hit a home run, watch is batting for the next few games. If a ten to one a that he will for some time. The reason being, that he is going after long hits and swinging too freely."

HARTFORD TO HONOR NOTRE DAME STAR

Hartford Conn., Dec. 22.—Hartford citizens are going to pay homage to Jim Harrison son December

Smith who weighs only 164 pounds nevertheless, was an all-New England selection for two years, a guard berth, was graduated from the Hartford High School. He made the varsity football team in his freshman year.

Smith was from Hartford High to Notre Dame For three years he has starred in the gridiron football for Knute Rockne's seven last Fall he captained the team that was beaten only by the Army.

On December 28 the citizens of Hartford will give a banquet in honor of Johnny Smith, one of the most popular athletes ever graduated from a Hartford school

Knute Rockne, the wizard of Notre Dame is coming from South Bend to be the principal speaker. Mayor Norman Stevens Governor John H. Trumbull and other high officials of the civil life of the city and State are on the list of speakers.

Mrs. Anna Smith Johnny's mother, who will be present at the banquet, says she would like to "meet in the flesh" the man who has never seen Rockne play as he was never started. Young Smith has never seen Rockne play as he was never started. Young Smith has never seen Rockne when Rockne was here next week and who will soon visit the campus at South Bend and see son graduates in

Smith saw her first football game when the Army beats Notre Dame. "I thank God I never got a thrill I got when I watch a football career is over," she said tonight. That is more of an All-American football player feels about the game.

Smith has worked hard to get through high school, college. Several summers he worked with a [illegible] to help defray expenses. Last Summer he stayed with Rockne and helped paint the stands

Smith, who is a brother, Bernard, is a freshman student to the Catholic University of Washington and a few years.

We cultivate CABBAGES, of Course, and hinges, and other ODD and FUNNY things.
But LOVE?
Well, really—with the business Of making a LIVING, bringing Up a family, or BUILDING a Career, it seems ridiculous. So the world ARGUES and Men and women "PASS the Buck."

On love. They throw a few Seeds of FLATTERY into Another's MIND and hope They will BLOOM there so that They may PLUCK the flowers later.
They do KINDNESSES for "Cultivated acquaintances" Invariably HOPING to reap Where they have SOWN.
Even mothers, the only REALLY Unselfish lovers in the world, Often LOOK at their small Children as at TREES, Thinking how they will grow To be a SHELTER For them in the FADING Years. LOVE should Start with oneself and end With the WORLD.

WOMAN'S PROTECTIVE LOVE FOR HER CHILDREN HAS MOLDED CIVILIZATION

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

HERE is a letter from a girl who is indignant because she feels that "the morals of the nation" are allowed to rest on the shoulders of its women.

Why so much worry about the moral [illegible] of the modern girl? Aren't certain moral men just as important as women to the health and [illegible] of the future generation and the life-long happiness of marriage? Why should the morals of the nation be allowed to rest on the shoulders of the weaker sex?

"There is no logical reason why a woman should be responsible for the morals of both herself and her man companion and get [illegible] of the petting, while he is allowed to go as far as she permits [illegible] control.

But owing to the fact that even now all women greatly outnumber married men, it seems to me that most of the [illegible] should be directed at the man who sets the scales balance. For in order to reach an ideal stage of living, these must be no difference in the privileges enjoyed by the two sexes."

"SINGLE STANDARD."

There will always be differences, dear Miss single standard, between the freedoms enjoyed by men and those allowed to women. Old Mother Nature has attended to that. Men and women are differently constituted. It is probable that the average man will always enjoy more sheer physical strength than the average woman. The average woman has a more delicate nervous organism than the average man, and for that reason is more injuriously affected by stimulants. No one is to blame for this state of affairs except Nature.

As for worrying about the trend of morals of modern girls, I don't know that so much worrying is being done by thoughtful persons. Girls are enjoying new freedom, and in some cases are a little intoxicated by it. But they will find poise and balance just as the pendulum swings back and forth, preserving balance.

This particular column of mine happens to be devoted to love problems of girls, which accounts for the fact that it devotes more space to talking things over with girls than it does to "preaching direct at the masculine sex," which you suggest.

It is true that we need "clean moral men," as well as clean, moral women if we are to have healthy, successful men and women in future generations. But do not forget, dear Single Standard, that women have almost entire charge of children during the first dozen years of life, when the child is absolutely at the mercy of the moral and mental atmosphere surrounding it, so it is even more important for a child to have a good mother than a good father.

Caught in the Meshes of a woman's charm, a man's attention is attracted to a shapely limb and slender ankle by the peach colored silk mesh stockings that are now lending the evening hosiery mode.

Martha Lee Gives Some Christmas Supper Menus

By MARTHA LEE

DO you belong to one of the families that "divvy up" Christmas Day—having dinner at one house and supper at another? This custom seems to be coming more popular and brings the Christmas supper into the limelight.

Don't you think it is a good idea to get away from the remains of the feast until later and have something entirely different for the Christmas supper? I was posing you would like to see some of the cold sliced turkey or goose in a club sandwich.

The tomato, bacon, lettuce and salad dressing take away any hint of Christmas leftovers. French fried potatoes may be served with the club sandwich which should be of the open style rather than the three-decker which is so hard to spear.

Here's a suggestion for Menu No. 1.

Crabmeat Salad Ribbon Sandwiches
Individual Pumpkin Pies
Whipped Cream
Nuts Cider

Bon Bons

An [illegible] not too hard to prepare might be:

Scalloped Celery with Mushrooms or Chopped Poultry
Hot Biscuit, Cider Ice, Sponge Cake
Salted Nuts Coffee

CIDER ICE—This is made by cooking together 2 cups of sugar, 6 tbsps. of lemon juice and 1 cup of water, until it forms a soft ball when tried in cold water. Add this to 2 quarts of cider and freeze.

Or still another menu!

Creamed Shrimps with Green Peppers on Toast Points
Bread and Butter Strips
Fruit Salad Cakes Coffee

FRUIT SALAD—Mix together chopped celery, chopped apples and grapes cut in halves and blended together with mayonnaise diluted with whipped cream. Arrange this around or over half of a pineapple peach in a nest of lettuce or on a bed of shredded lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise.

The creamed shrimps and green peppers are made just as you would make a melting wiggle, with the exception of frying the green pepper in butter until tender. Then add the shrimps, milk, seasonings and cook until smooth.

For a [illegible] exception!

Creamed Cheese and Jelly Nut Bread Sandwiches
Orange Bavarian Cream
Brownies Tea

And for still another

Snappy Sandwiches
Orange Pecan Salad
Gingerbread and Whipped Cream
Coffee

SNAPPY SANDWICHES—Cream together 1 package of cream cheese and 2 tbsps. peanut butter. Chop 1 hard-cooked egg fine, 1 sour pickle, and 1 tbsp. green pepper. Stir these into the cream cheese. Then add salt and pepper and paprika to taste. Spread quite thickly between buttered slices of bread

CHICKEN NUT SANDWICH—Other good sandwich combinations for the Christmas supper are chicken nut sandwiches made by mixing 1 cup of chopped chicken, turkey or goose with 1 cup chopped nuts. Blend these together with 3 tbsps. cream, season with ¾ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. paprika and a dash of pepper.

DATE SANDWICHES—Cream 1 package cream cheese and 12 dates which have been stoned and chopped and one-third tsp. salt. Spread on buttered bread and sprinkle with chopped peanuts and cover with buttered bread.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

This Day in Our History

THE Marquis de Lafayette, following the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, and after four and a half years of service in the American Army under Washington, sailed from Boston in U. S. S. Alliance to his native land, December 22, 1871.

SALLY'S SHOULDERS

by Beatrice Burton

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

The Story of a Clever Boston Girl and Her Temperamental Sister

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"YOU'RE here looking for a job, aren't you, Mr. Davidson?" Sally asked bluntly, still holding him by the lapel of his new brown coat. "And I don't want you to do it!"

Davy Davidson stared at her dumb with surprise. He could not make her out.

Here was a girl who was altogether new in his experience of girls who worked in offices. A girl who was not only as smart as a whip, but pretty, too! As pretty as a flower and as young as April. Only he did not put it to himself in just those words. Mr. Davidson was no poet.

Until he met Sally, he had been able to put all the girls he knew into two classes—those who were clever and homely, and those who were beautiful and dumb.

But Sally fell into no class. "She has everything," Mrs. Davidson said to himself slangily. "Looks and brains and pep."

He pulled himself together and asked aloud just why Sally did not want him to work for the "John Nye Real Estate Company."

It did not take Sally long to tell him why.

"I wouldn't do," she said with decision. "You and Millie have been friends for so long that you just couldn't work together. You'd be sitting around, talking to each other all day instead of working. And Millie and Mr. Nye get along so well that I hate to think of anything spoiling things here."

Davidson stared at her, his brows knotted in a frown.

"I don't get you," he told her after a minute. "But it's perfectly clear to me that you don't want me here, for some good reason of your own. So—that's out."

He laughed, showing very nice, white teeth in a good-natured grin. "I guess I can still struggle along selling bonds," he said cheerfully.

"But Millie talked this game up to me, and made me promise to come up here and talk it over with Nye."

"That sounds as if Millie has been seeing him lately," thought Sally. "Wish she's been pretending to be all wrapped up in John Nye." That certainly was not what Ted Sloan would have called "square shooting."

Then, once more, her promise to Millie flashed into her mind.

"You won't forget it, see Millie in the hospital, will you?" she asked, holding out her little hardened hand in farewell. "Mother drops in every day at 4 o'clock. Why don't you go then?"

He seemed to be thinking it over, still holding her hand in his well-cared-for one.

"Well, perhaps I will," he was beginning and then his face brightened and sharpened. "I'll tell you what—we'll make a deal. I'll go to the hospital at 4 o'clock if you'll come at 6 and let me drive you home."

"All right. I think Mr. Nye-ver will let me leave early, for once," replied the girl. "I'll be there at 5."

Sally's Heart Thumped Madly as John Entered the Office

"Five then." And he was gone, triumphant and pleased with himself in his new brown Fall suit, swinging his hat and his cheerwood stick.

The smooth sunlit surfaces of glass and brown mahogany seemed to smile up at her in a friendly way. She smoothed her hand across the top of John Nye's desk. She loved to touch it, because his lean, narrow tanned hands had lain upon it.

The door opened and he came in. Before the door had closed behind him Sally's heart was leaping, thudding against her ribs as it always did as she first saw him, at the beginning of the day.

"Good morning. How are you today?" he asked, looking at her and then at his desk.

Anyone but a blind man could have seen that the work Sally had put upon the straightening of that desk and all the drawers of it, was a labor of love. Love that does all things with a little touch of magic. But John Nye was in love with Millie, and they say that love is blind, he simply dropped down into his chair and picked up his neatly opened letters. He reached for one of the pencils that she had sharpened so beautifully and began to tap his teeth with it thoughtfully as he went over the mail.

His day began.

In the outer office at her little desk sat Sally, staring out of the window at the blue sky and the snow smoke spirals that curled across it, and for once she was rebellious. Rebellious—Sally, whose watchword in life was: "I serve."

"I might be the dictograph for all the notice he takes of me!" she said to herself, grimly, and then, almost at once, the girl actually rapped herself to order.

"Hero! What am I thinking about? I didn't come here to make him notice me. I came to do Millie a good turn, and she is able to come back here to this man who loves her."

She told it to herself as bluntly as that, and all morning she worked harder than as if she had been doing piece-work in a factory instead of elegantly typed letters in a luxurious office.

At five minutes after 5 she ran up the steps of the hospital.

"Your sister has a visitor," the little nurse in charge of the second floor told her when she came softly down the long, white corridor.

"I know," answered Sally. She could hear the low murmur of Davy Davidson's voice as she pushed open the swinging door of Millie's room.

The sweet smell of John Nye's roses filled the air in it. And, pink as any of them, sat Millie, all wrapped up in her pink bathrobe. She had combed out her long, yellow hair and it lay like a veil of gold around her shoulders. Her eyebrows and lashes had been darkened, and her mouth painted, and she was laughing and talking—she looked more like herself than she had in a week.

Seeing her interest, Mrs. Haiden brought samples of fabric and Carolly began to learn the origin of each and how it might and might not be used properly. She enjoyed this, but her chief delight was with colors. She never wearied of fussing over dyes, experimenting with the mysteries of pigment, trying out weird combinations.

She went at this in a heedless fashion which soon would have stained her hands like sample cards had not Mrs. Haiden insisted that she wear gloves.

"Well, you don't," Emily objected.

stern and solid. Why, if it were a person it would stick up its nose at the other and probably scowl. You'd never believe people would like things so different."

"But the people were different, child. Furniture, you see, like dress and jewelry, reflects the characteristics of those who designed it.

"What Grat was turned out by folks as shallow as the pink and blue of the cushions and as frivolous as the gilding. In all the history of the world there has been far more trivial age than that of Louis in France.

"As for the other—you've studied the American Colonial period, stern and dependable. They were wrestling with elemental forces, fighting for life against tremendous odds, and they put the grimness of it into their furniture. Something majestic about it, though. The difference between an oak and an elderbush."

"I'm many years older than you my dear, and I've lost things on the road here there. One of them is the reason for personal beauty. Every young woman has a duty Emily often overlooked. It's to keep her self attractive for the man who some day will love her and want her for his wife."

"But—"

"You'll understand one day. When someone whose word means much tells you that you're beautiful, you'll understand."

Emily bought rubber gloves that noon-hour. She already understood Meredith on a maple garden—the whiteness of a stone bench—a tea-leaf bending down his head. "Prettiest girl in Dedham, prettiest and sweetest, Emily—"

She understood. She had a memory which filled her with light—oh, a blithe thing. Only a memory the experience could come no more. Yet because it had been hers she understood many things. And bought the gloves.

Kent had gone away directly school was out. He had gone abroad somewhere; perhaps back to Como, where he would drift between the blue of the water and that of the sky, lazy, a bit lonesome, maybe. Would he think of her sometimes? Remember her as the girl in yellow flounces he had kissed.

Even now, going along the street in the bright glare of October sunlight, she could feel the softness of perfumed arms—feel the touch of his lips. So dear—so dear!

Avis was in town for brief periods between trips north and south. The social column of the Dedham Transcript told about Avis's home and Emily had taken to reading the column. Names of her one-time schoolmates often were printed and something when we get to long for the old days it made her feel less blue to know what they were doing.

Anne Morrow and the Tourney girl going down to the Cape for a weekend, Anne giving a party for her friends. Emily wondered how it would feel to be invited to one of Anne's parties now.

Time did come face to face with Avis Forester, she was standing at the curb, waiting for traffic to pass, and Avis swung along in the bright green roadster she drove, stopping so near that their hands might have touched. Emily hadn't seen her in years, but Avis seemed not to see her.

"Probably didn't remember me, she had herself. But she knew this would be.

Another time she watched the green roadster pull up while Avis smiled at Marty Brown, stand near a moment in front of the Haiden shop. He walked out quickly and climbed into the car. Emily saw a hard, bright light in his red brown eyes. Avis put her foot on the gas and started off into the traffic. Emily watched until the green car was lost in the early Winter. And the society column sent Kent away to school and printed a story of Avis going to Paris for the Winter. Charles Grant Forester was with her. Mr. Forester had taken an apartment in the French capital.

And one day Emily told herself that all the angels were shedding their feathers and all the feathers were falling upon her. She knew the garden at Rossiter's

Fate's Marionettes

We All Must Dance Blindly to Her Tune

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

TRULY has it been said that "Fate holds the string and men like children move." For to each of us, as we come into the world, Dame Fate attaches the gossamer thread that decides our destinies. True, lots of us try to break the thread in defiance of Fate's mandates, but no matter how far we go, how hard we try, there is no escaping her ultimate decrees.

In spite of all our boastings we are but marionettes in the hands of Fate. She it is who decides when we shall be, what we shall do, where we shall go and with whom and why.

Fate, like the gaily-clad harlequin of the marionettes, manipulates the strings and we have no alternative but to dance as she wills. For you see, Lan Cupid whispers into Dame Fate's ear his own plans, and out in the late sunshine.

"I like it, though," he replied, "I like it better than I've liked anything in a long time." He laughed. He was in very good humor and drove Sally several miles out of her way home before he finally dropped her at her door in Hemenway street. Mrs. Jerome was in her armchair in the sitting room when Sally went upstairs. She had brought a new book home from the library and had sat right down to start it without taking off her hat and shoes so she said, guiltily.

"And then," she explained, "the bell rang and a boy brought this telegram—and your name's coming!" Her voice was trembling, and two tears were flooded with excitement. "He'll be here tonight."

Tomorrow—Beau and Mabel hand another one to Sally. Is she a stooge?

There is no remembrance which time does not obliterate, nor pain which pain does not put to an end to.—Cervantes.

Millie had got back her appetite at last.

"I don't believe she liked the idea of my driving home with you," Sally remarked to him when they were alone, and made him promise to come and see her again soon.

"And bring me chocolates—bittersweet chocolates," she called after him. "You know the kind—with walnuts in them."

It Was Clear She Wanted to Be Alone With Davidson

"Mother's just left," she greeted Sally. "If you hurry you can catch her. Be sure to come tomorrow."

It was very clear that she wanted to be alone with Davidson.

But Sally did not take the broad hint that she gave her. Instead she came into the room and sat down on the wide window sill.

There was dead silence for a minute.

Then Millie spoke again.

"Would you take that thermos jug on the dresser out into the hall and get it filled for me, Sally?" she asked sharply. "The nurse is out there, probably gossiping with some of her cronies. That's all they do all day, it seems to me."

Sally picked up the thermos bottle. It was heavy and she could tell that it was quite full. But she dutifully carried it out into the hall, stood there with it in her hands for five minutes, and then carried it back to Millie.

Millie and Davidson were talking in low tones, their heads close together. But they sprang apart when she pushed open the door.

Davidson got up from his low chair beside Millie's bed.

"Well, it's time for us to be going, isn't it, Sally?" he asked, and Sally saw the questioning look that came into Millie's face.

"What this you're doing? Riding around with him, when you know he belong to me," that look said as plainly as a telegraphic message.

For the first time her light-blue eyes that were full of sparkling power, seemed to see Sally as she was. As she looked to the world of men . . . Fresh and pretty and wholly desirable.

She reached for a paper package that lay on the lower shelf of her bedside table. "Here's some nightgowns I've worn. Wash them and bring them back to me. I need them," she said, with never a pleasure or a thank you.

Sally took them—not meekly, but clearly. And holding the package against her breast, she leaned across the bed to kiss Millie.

But Millie turned her scowling face away. "Don't kiss me!" she said, with a make-believe shudder. "I'm so nervous that I just want to be let alone—by everybody."

But when it came to shaking hands with Davidson, it was a far different matter. She clung to him with one hand, patting his arm with the other, and made him promise to come and see her again soon.

"And bring me chocolates—bittersweet chocolates," she called after him. "You know the kind—with walnuts in them."

But she wasn't unhappy. The joy of working with color, of building the beautiful things in line and the joy of association with Frances Haiden compensated for much. Even she thought sometimes, for giving up school and the broken dream of one day being a teacher at Lamb.

After a time Mrs. Haiden began to take her along when she went to the interiors. And she raised her salary a bit now and then, enough to keep Emily feeling she was prospering. With these raises and what Agnes was able to earn the Davis got on comfortably. Much more comfortably, as a matter of fact, than Stephen Day for now there were no easy-money seasons to keep away their savings.

Emily kept looking forward to the time when she should be an interior decorator in her own right. Not so wonderful, of course, as Frances Haiden, but as nearly like her as possible. Kitten would be through school then and perhaps ready for a job, also now Lamb Mc[illegible] tired hands a long rest.

And Winter melted into Summer and Summer waned. And each first of January Emily brought home one more splashily bright calendar. Mrs. Haiden sent her convincing notes. They were cheerful, those calendars that Emily never could bear to throw them out after the last page was torn away. So she hung them on the [illegible] in all.

Miss Ralston in Farce-Drama

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Dec. 22.—These directors ever so often get the writing bug. Sometimes the film producers are pleased as dagain when the picture is completed they are not so pleased.

Frank Tuttle has written a farce-melodrama called "Nothing Ever Happens," for Esther Ralston. Having seen what Tod Browning did with "London After Midnight," I'm inclined to be lenient with Mr. Tuttle and say: "Well, it may be pretty good."

Farce mystery melodrama is probably the most popular screen entertainment, and Mr. Tuttle had both this and Esther Ralston in mind when he wrote his masterpiece. He will direct it himself, but he entrusts his screen story to Florence Ryerson and Raymond Cannon, who will adopt it for its motion picture career.

There will be nothing exotic or out of the ordinary in Paul Fejos' first picture for Universal. Very wisely, Mr. Fejos has been given "The House of Glass," Max Marcin's drama, to convey to the screen. Here is a normal, natural drama—the kind that should make a good picture. Mr. Fejos, I had better explain, is the rising young director who megaphoned "The Last Moment," supposed to reflect the last thoughts of a dying man.

The bad, mad man responsible for the downfall of the innocent maiden in "The Godless Girl" is being played by Noah Beery. Lina Basquette, who plays that maiden, loved me and she ought to know.

Another one of the important roles has been handed to John Batten, a young English actor, who arrived in America only a short time ago.

Right in the midst of her Christmas shopping, poor Jessie Love got the "flu." Bessie wouldn't mind so much being laid low if she hadn't had a visit from the "flu" last year. She feels this return engagement isn't fair. However, the doctor and Bessie's friends hope that she'll be able to enjoy Christmas in her usual style.

Universal's pet and most recent discovery, Ruth Hurst, will make her debut as a contract Universal player in "Home, James." She plays the sister of Laura La Plante, the star, and we hear she is to be given every consideration. With Carl Laemmle's approval, she has every incentive to make good.

Comes the postman with Christmas cards of all colors. But the most unusual comes from Millard Webb. There is two cents postage due on his greeting. Is it a joke? I wouldn't be if the other person did the same thing.

NOVELTY HANDBAGS.

Handbags like mail bags represent an interesting novelty to carry with semi-sports or tailored clothes. Copied from old-fashioned mail pouches, there is a looped strap at the back. The front flap extends only part of the way down and is fastened by a strong snap, which is hidden by an imitation of an antique ivory clasp. In black velvet or satin or in colored calf, lined in soft suede, such a purse is both practical and distinctive.

OINTMENT WORTH $100 A JAR
TO MAN WHO SUFFERED CONSTANTLY FOR FIVE YEARS
Healed leg entirely

Spokane, Wash., March 21:—"While working in a stone quarry, I slipped and cut my leg and blood poisoning set in. The doctor stopped this, but my leg refused to heal. It became a running sore and hurt me so I could hardly do my work. I wore bandages constantly for five years, using several remedies without success. One day a friend recommended Resinol Ointment and after I had used ten jars of it my leg was entirely healed. This ointment is worth $100 a jar to me, and I will never be without it in my house again."—(Signed) W. F. Bower, Box 593.

Resinol Ointment should be in every home. It's invaluable for cuts, burns, blisters, chafing, etc., as well as more serious skin disorders. All druggists sell the Resinol products.

Final Bid ..... Played by .....

South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played. Double Dummy, i. e., although all four hands were exposed.

Salient Points of the Bidding

South, holding a hand of more than ordinary strength, with distributed values, bids one No Trump. West, with the required top strength and both Majors well fortified, doubles informatorily. North passes. East responds with his long suit, Diamonds. South doubles two Diamonds to show rebid strength regardless of the fact that West had already made an informatory double. West bids his Hearts over South's double. North bids two clubs, despite the intervening bid because holding greater strength than South could reasonably expect.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. Declarer goes up with Dummy's Ace of Hearts to avoid trumps and then if possible effect the immediate establishment of Dummy's Diamonds.

Trick 5. As West's Jack of Diamonds fell on the previous trick Declarer plays the eight from Dummy, and West's King falling, Dummy's two remaining Diamonds are good.

Trick 8 and 9. Declarer, playing Dummy's winning Diamonds, secures two Spade scards and makes game on the card.

Only a bold opening of Spades could have saved game at the club bid. Declarer then making four odd instead of five. At No Trump, the best defensive play would hold North-South to two odd, one thereof of game.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

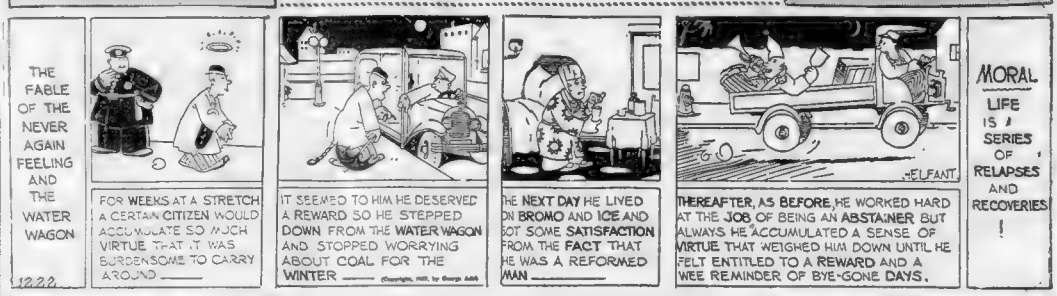
FABLES IN SLANG

The Water Wagon

By George Ade



THE FABLE OF THE NEVER AGAIN FEELING AND THE WATER WAGON
FOR WEEKS AT A STRETCH A CERTAIN CITIZEN WOULD ACCUMULATE SO MUCH VIRTUE THAT IT WAS BURDENSOME TO CARRY AROUND
1222
IT SEEMED TO HIM HE DESERVED A REWARD SO HE STEPPED DOWN FROM THE WATER WAGON AND STOPPED WORRYING ABOUT COAL FOR THE WINTER
THE NEXT DAY HE LIVED ON BROMO AND ICE AND GOT SOME SATISFACTION FROM THE FACT THAT HE WAS A REFORMED MAN
THEREAFTER, AS BEFORE, HE WORKED HARD AT THE JOB OF BEING AN ABSTAINER BUT ALWAYS HE ACCUMULATED A SENSE OF VIRTUE THAT WEIGHED HIM DOWN UNTIL HE FELT ENTITLED TO A REWARD AND A WEE REMINDER OF BYE-GONE DAYS.

FRISBY WINS EASILY IN FIRST OFFICIAL TEST

Gets Name Included in Congressional Directory Against Strong Opposition

Above is the gift we are getting for Mr. Frisby. Do you care to contribute?

By MISTER FRISBY
Congressman-at-Large

Washington—I wish to announce to my constituents my good fortune in winning my first fight in the halls of Congress.

Today I demanded that my name be included in the Congressional Directory, which is published each session. And I am happy to report that I won.

The good people of my district need have no fear that their representative will be left out of this list.

In fact, I have been asked to write a piece about myself, telling my full name, age, etc. I have set to the task with a stout heart and have already dashed off considerable interesting material on the back of a roll of wallpaper which I carry for the purpose.

Let me suggest that one and all make an effort to obtain a First Edition of this directory, as it will become more precious year after year. But beware of a hoax. Don't let any bookseller palm off a copy that does not contain the name of Frisby. Why clutter up your library needlessly?

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

IT'S less than a month now until Leap year and millions of old maids are planning to do their leaping early.

EVERY bachelor hotel is a hope chest.

THE bachelors are trying to protect themselves by filling the jobbies with mice.

BUT the spinsters are prepared. They're going around with a marriage license in one hand and a mouse trap in the other.

THOUSANDS of innocent men are leading unmarried lives and don't want to be interrupted.

WEDLOCK is all right, but not for single fellows.

THEY have nothing against marriage. It's a wonderful thing for husbands.

A BACHELOR is a man who's never been disappointed in love.

HE picks them at random and leaves them at the same place.

AN Iowa dame says she's going to marry two men in case something happens to the other one.

SHE'S a woman with wholesale ideas.

ACCORDING to her, every bachelor should be married. No man has a right to enjoy himself.

SHE'S looking for a widower. She wants a man who's altar broke.

SHE has her eye on a fellow who's trying to be a century plant, but she's going to nip him in the bud.

SHE'S not satisfied with one flower of youth; she wants a whole bouquet.

LEAP YEAR gives the homely women a chance. Many an old maid has started in life as an American beauty and turned out to be a snap-dragon.

ITCHY RASH ON BABY'S SCALP

Scratching Caused Eruptions. Cuticura Healed.

"The general appearance of the breaking out on my baby's scalp was in a rash. It kept spreading over her head and formed scales. It must have itched as the baby scratched, causing eruptions, and she was very fretful. Her hair became lifeless and dry and fell out. The trouble lasted two or three months.

"I used other remedies without success. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped her. I purchased more and in a short time she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Wellington Morey, West Fairlee, Vt., Jan. 6, 1927.

The Habit of Courage

BY L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

HENRY and his little brother Boswell were delivering hand bills. Up one side of the street and down the other they went ringing doorbells and leaving the circulars as they had been instructed to do. Henry darted into one house while Boswell ran into the next door, and so they made quick work of their bill throwing.

Then all of a sudden Henry heard the ugly growl of a dog mingled with a shriek from his younger brother. Looking in the direction from which the terrifying sounds came the boy saw a huge dog almost upon Boswell. Before he could move, the dog leaped at the child, but Boswell dodged the attack. Then without a moment's hesitation Henry picked up a stick and ran shouting toward the ferocious animal.

As often happens, the dog recognized the fearlessness of a superior being and slunk away beneath the house. The boy's superb courage had saved his little brother from a horrible experience.

Now Henry has not always been a brave and bold lad. He can remember when he was afraid of many things—dogs in particular. He still shrinks from encounters with danger. That is human nature. But in an emergency he can be trusted to rise to the occasion and meet danger unafraid.

Three years ago Henry joined the Boy Scouts; and as every scout knows service and courage are keynotes of scoutdom. Those boys are trained in courage. They are inspired by tales of brave deeds and they are taught how to meet emergencies. Henry, being a most enthusiastic scout, read the books and practised the teachings week after week for a long, long time. In that way he got the lessons firmly planted in his consciousness. He gradually acquired the habit of courage through performing many small deeds of bravery. Then the big test came and he met it like a man.

Authorities on the subject agree that people are not born brave or cowardly by training, by everyday influences, by environment.

When the habit of courage is firmly fixed in the nature of a boy, a girl, a man or woman, then that person can be depended upon to act without fear of cowardice in any situation.

It is persistent drill; patient teaching, wise counsel and good example that enables your son to throw off the shackles of fear. For he surely as habit controls other actions, habit controls the trait called "courage."

Sometimes it is companions who furnish training in physical courage. Sometimes it is the conditions which a cold world imposes upon homeless children. There are undoubtedly many fearless people who have never had any home training. But they got it in the hard school of experience. No one wants his own children subjected to unnecessary hardships. But every parent wants his children—especially his sons—to be brave.

Those who are unable to cultivate in their young ones the habit of courage may be able to find some organization that will help in that direction. It is certainly worth trying.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By HELEN ROWLAND.

WHEREFORE, my Daughter, do men make love unto women, and to pursue them with flatteries and petting and applesauce and sweet nothings!

For, lo, many men have come unto me sighing that they are weary of women and sick of love!

Yet, do they continue their philandering, unblushingly.

Go to. There be an hundred reasons why men continue to woo women; and the greatest of these is HABIT.

For, alas, even as some men have only one after-dinner story, and others only one collar button, many men have only one line of chatter for women. And blessing a damsel is to them but second nature and a matter of form.

And some men make love because they fancy themselves Great Lovers, and seek to practice their skill. For every woman is to them but another conquest and another sentimental experiment; and NO damsel escapeth them!

And other men make love because they are filled with a secret conviction that every damsel EXPECTETH it. And to disappoint a woman would be a breach of etiquette. Therefore do they kiss every damsel out of pure courtesy.

Behold, many men make love to a woman because they suspect in their hearts, that if they do NOT woo her, some other man WILL. And no man can endure that any other man should beat him at his own game.

And more men make love because it is easier to kiss a woman and tell her how wonderful she is, than to explain to her why they do not especially care to kiss her.

Lo, some men make love because for a brief moment they are overcome with infatuation, and filled with the illusion that it is LOVE from which they are suffering. Yet, upon the next morning, when they have regained their nerve and their composure, they are smitten with remorse—and the damsel seeth them no more!

Thus do all men continue to make love unto women, so long as their hearts are not entangled.

But when a man dinneth himself truly IN LOVE, his tongue cleaveth unto the roof of his mouth, and he closeth his lips lest he commit himself. And only by main force and artful subtlety can an admission be extracted FROM him!

For verily, verily nothing so crampeth a man's style and wrecketh his love-making, as Love, itself!

SELAH.

TRAVEL-TOURS-HOTELS

POLAND SPRING XMAS PLANS

Reservations for the Christmas and New Year holidays at the Mansion House, Poland Spring, Me., are the largest they have been for several years. Due to the early snowfall in that section, all forms of Winter sports are now available. Long famous as a Winter sports resort, especial attention has been centered on the Mansion House the past three years, due to the Poland Spring Dog-Sled Derby races, which are the first held in New England under the auspices of the New England Dog Sled Association, which attracts some of the most famous dog drivers of the country.

Leonard Sepalla, famous Alaskan dog driver, has arrived for the Poland Spring Dog-Sled Derby. He brought more than twenty Siberian dogs with him and can be seen daily mushing over the roads and hills, getting them in shape for the races to be held on January 27 and 28.

Mrs E P. Ricker, Jr., of the Mansion House, who was the only woman entrant in the races last year, is also out on the roads putting her team in trim. She will have a relatively new team of full-blooded Eskimo huskies this year, and it is expected she will put up a fine race. Contestants a worthy race. Mrs. Ricker put her dog sled on wheels during the Summer and attracted much attention when giving the dogs a run.

Among the arrivals at the Mansion House are: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Felton of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dostnell and family of Milton, Mass.; Mr. Chester Isgild of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Price of Boston; Lady Katherine Mercer and her son, Commander Mercer, of Boston; Mrs. John T. Bottomley and family of Newton, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Stewart of Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. Frank D. Woodruff and family of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. John Stiles of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Seeville of Brookline, Mass.; Mr and Mrs. Albert A. Hunt of Milton, Mass.; Mrs. Hentak Sa, and family of Milton, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Sheffner of Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Prevores and children of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. Woodruff M. Smith, Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fl Mills of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Tower of Milton, Mass.; Mr. Charles Lansdale of Brookline, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Excursion Trains for Montreal Leave Dec. 30 and 31

The Boston & Maine Railroad announce a New Year's excursion to Montreal leaving Boston Friday and Saturday December 30 and 31, returning by day or night trains Monday, January 2. This excursion will offer a wonderful opportunity for New Englanders to enjoy Winter sports over the New Year's week-end at reasonable expense.

GET WEATHER BY MEASURE.

Measuring Winter joy by the yardstick is a novelty just introduced in connection with an extensive special Winter sports weather service in Germany.

For some time the German Winter sports enthusiasts has been accustomed to read in the newspapers or to hear over the radio all about temperature, snow and other conditions in the favorable Winter sports district.

In addition, this weather service now issues charts which are available at all travel bureaus, railroad stations and other opportune places, showing in a readily understandable manner the amount of snow covering each Winter sports district. These charts are based on readings from a special kind of snow gauge which has recently been introduced all over Germany.

There are some two hundred major Winter sports events scheduled for January, February and March in the Bavarian Alps, the Black Forest, Thuringia, the Harz Mountains, Saxon Switzerland and the various other Winter sports centres.

REGULAR TRIPS TO BERMUDA

With the resumption last Thursday of the regular weekly sailings of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's popular ship Araguaya, the 192-ft Bermuda season formally centres around the Queen of the B.M.N., a widely known figure in the Bermuda trade, took over command of the vessel which each Thursday will take its load of pleasure seekers South for rest and recreation where icy blasts are unknown and where the warm current which comes up from the Gulf of Mexico brings with it a semi-tropic climate.

Few spots remain on this side of the world which are so accessible and yet so full of charm and so unspoiled by the spirit of promotion and commercialism as the Bermuda Islands. About 700 miles southeast of New York, this group of islands lies beyond the Gulf stream. With none of the hustle and bustle characteristic of so many resorts, Bermuda is smart without ostentation. Colonial society centers around the Governor's house.

In and around Hamilton, the capital, and Bermuda's only city, are applied by visitors of note in the social world as well as writers and artists, and throughout the season tremendous hotels provide a continuous program of dancing, sports and other entertainments. In addition to features afforded by other resorts Bermuda boasts a full measure of real enjoyment which makes a vacation there one never to be forgotten.

With no railroads street cars nor automobiles, Bermuda abounds in beautiful coral roads winding over low hills, through valleys and along the crest of coral cliffs. Horseback riding and cycling are popular pastimes as are golf tennis, horseracing, surf-bathing, sailing and fishing.

NEW LONDON INN OPEN FOR WINTER

New London Inn, New London, N. H., on the crest of the hill, 1,400 feet above sea level, was built in 1792. It is an old-fashioned inn and while it has been enlarging several times, its original building, is still the same in many respects and a number of the rooms still have the old panelling and fireplaces.

COACH FOR NEWPORT, N. H. LEAVES BOSTON SATURDAY

The first Winter week-end trip de luxe motor coach tour Boston to Newport, N. H., the Sunapee Town, the home of Winter sports, will leave Boston on Saturday, December 31, direct from Newport Monday, January 2.

MRS. BAKER GIVES CHRISTMAS PARTY

Following her usual custom, Mrs. Roland M. Baker, wife of the postmaster of Boston, was hostess at her home, No. 70 Chestnut street, at a Christmas party for a group of children who are under the care of the Community Health Association for infantile paralysis after-treatment.

There was a Christmas tree with gifts for the little sufferers and their brothers and sisters, to whom, also, refreshments were served.

Those children, many of whom were crippled in the infantile paralysis epidemic of 1917, have been entertained by Mrs. Baker each Christmas for a number of years, and, according to Miss Florence Patterson general director of the association they look forward to the event during the entire year.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON DECEMBER 22, 1927

THE JOURNALISM WHICH SUCCEEDS IS A JOURNALISM UNAFRAID!

IT WILL NOT have escaped the attention of readers of the Hearst newspapers from Boston to Los Angeles, that a section of the press sees fit to discuss the "charges" these newspapers have made against certain United States Senators in connection with the Calles slush funds, but shuts its eyes completely to the revelations ACTUALLY made in these columns of the perfidy of the ruler of Mexico in his relations with this Government.

All this is very natural on the part of the section of the press referred to and quite what we expected.

The editors of some of the newspapers in question actually have been preaching to us of the "ethics" of journalism, as if they knew what it is and kept some on the premises.

And that was to have been expected, also.

But we regret very much to observe that one of the four Senators whose names were appropriated by the Calles gang for its own sinister purposes has joined the pack in its cry of unfairness.

We should as soon think of making charges against Santa Claus as against the high-principled statesman who protests against the publicity which has come to him, not through the Hearst newspapers, but from an Investigating Committee of the Senate.

For WE have made no "charges" against the honorable Senator and we make none, now. We have made no charges against the three other Senators whose names have been wantonly and cruelly misused by Calles and his band, nor do we make any, now.

To the contrary, we have said, and Mr. Hearst has testified gladly before the Reed Committee at Washington, that at no time has there been any suspicion of these Senators on the part of the Hearst editors and Hearst reporters who have been at work upon the expose of Plutarcho Elias Calles and the bitter enmity of that tyrant for the American Republic and the American people.

The very names of these Senators were themselves the best answer that could have been made to the Calles suggestion of venality.

What the Calles-Elias documents do show is that vast sums of money, unquestionably reaching high up into the millions, have been removed from the Treasury of Mexico and sent out of that country by the despot who now holds the people of the land in thralldom.

What these documents do prove is that so much of this vast sum as has passed beyond the ravenous grasp of the Calles family has been expended:

(1) Against the best interests of this Republic and its people or

(2) Against the present order of society and the peace of the world.

Within the past few days there has been a great deal of complacent drool in the public press about the "better understanding" which has been so miraculously and so hurriedly brought about between the United States and Mexico.

What really has happened is that the despot Calles and certain gentlemen interested in smelters have in a critical hour sought to distract the attention of the peoples on both sides of the Rio Grande from the true situation.

"Am I to Tell These Things or Hold My Tongue?"

"RICHARD LLOYD JONES' admonition to 'tell all the news' is an answer to a question that newspapermen have raised ever since the press became free from censorship.

"'Am I to tell these things or hold my tongue?' was the inquiry that William Howard Russell, the first war correspondent in the history of journalism, the representative of The London Times in the Crimea,, addressed to his illustrious chief, John T. Delane, in 1853. And Delane, one of the greatest editors the world has known, replied in unequivocal language. There followed from Russell a series of brilliant dispatches, in which he exposed the wretched state of the English army at Sebastopol. 'The men are sleeping on ice,' he wrote. 'The army has dwindled from 55,000 to 11,000 fit to hold a musket.'

"The Times came in for abuse and reviling for this exposure of the truth. A British general ordered Russell's tent kicked down because the correspondent was an interloper, he said. The War Department, setting a precedent which War Departments in many nations have since followed under similar circumstances, insisted that The Times was giving aid and comfort to the enemy. But neither Russell nor Delane turned from what they clearly saw to be their duty. Finally, in January, 1854, Roebuck, a radical member from Sheffield, moved for an inquiry into the management of the war. The ministry of Lord Aberdeen was overthrown by a 2 to 1 vote and Lord Palmerston formed a cabinet which brought the war to a successful conclusion. Sir Evelyn Wood has said that Russell's articles saved the remnant of the British army."

—From "Newspapers in Community Service" (The Editor as Crusader), by Norman J. Radder, Indiana University.

From this side of the border, Americans look on in amazement, perplexed by the contradiction between the reports which issue from Washington and those which come from Mexico City.

How about the OTHER side?

What do you suppose the poor Mexican patriot has been saying these past few days?

He hears the bands playing, he observes that our flags are intertwined, he sees the representative of the United States at play with the Boss Brigand and, God help him! His heart sinks within him.

"This," the patriot Mexican says, "is the last straw. The devil's agent has won the respect and esteem of the great Republic to the North. Liberty is dead."

That is what they are saying today in Mexico, fellow Americans, while the effort is made to distract YOUR attention by frantic cries that the honor of certain upright Senators of unquestioned and unquestionable rectitude has been disputed by the foremost organization of liberal newspapers in the country.

We have been SHAKING HANDS WITH CALLES, that is what we have been doing, for Calles IS the Government of Mexico and there is no other.

What do AMERICANS think of that performance?

Would any of you who read these lines shake hands with Calles?

Unless Calles kills the one remaining candidate for his place—he already has killed two—he will get out of office early in the coming year.

The Calles medicine for every opponent, every venturesome Mexican who has dared to announce his candidacy for the presidency, is the firing squad.

General Francisco Serrano announced HIS candidacy and General Serrano was shot.

General Arnulfo Gomez tried HIS luck at being a candidate and the bullets of a band of Calles assassins took all the nonsense out of HIM, too.

There is no security in Mexico today for life or property or human rights. The bandit robs and murders on every highway. The country is in a state of anarchy and this, of all times, is the hour selected by SOME Americans to deliver a message to Mexican patriots saying that there IS no hope and declaring falsely that it comes in the name of the liberty-loving people of the United States.

The hope of those who have staged this marvelous illusion is that it will counteract the effect of the "forgeries" Mr. Hearst has brought to the attention of the United States Senate and through the Senate to the serious consideration of the American people.

"Forgeries!"

WHO calls them forgeries?

One of the men who, were he to call them anything else, would stand exposed to the world as one of the arch-traitors of history.

Who calls them GENUINE?

A man honorably discharged from the United States Army, formerly attached to the United States Military Intelligence Service.

What do the documents show, in addition to the fact that the names of United States Senators were basely used to cover the withdrawal of $1,215,000 from the Mexican Treasury?

They show that $100,000 was withdrawn from the treasury in the name of the President of Mexico ostensibly to be paid to Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, now the Attorney-General of Brazil, who in 1925 served on the Special Mixed Claims Commission as the third or NEUTRAL member.

This was the commission which passed upon claims filed against the Government of Mexico for life and property losses sustained by citizens of the United States during the revolutionary period from November 20th, 1910, to May 31st, 1920.

Within that period, 16 Americans lost their lives. The decision of the Octavio Commission was AGAINST the American claimants. Seven months before it was announced Calles was preparing to hand the NEUTRAL member of the Commission $100,000, as a "recompense for his good services to Mexico."

In its own good time, we have no doubt, the Reed Committee will invite to Washington the AMERICAN member of the Mixed Claims Commission, Judge Ernest B. Perry of Lincoln, Neb., and get HIS story of what went on.

Some who read these lines may be the fathers and mothers of young American Marines who have lost their lives in Nicaragua. YOU must have been stirred by the revelation that the bullets may have come from Calles.

The documents turned over to the Reed Committee by Mr. Hearst purport to show that Calles has made free use of the money of the people of Mexico in an effort to destroy American influence in a region where America's MUST be the dominant influence in the interest of the safety of the world.

Calles conspired and spent vast sums of money in order to establish Sacasa and a revolutionary government in Nicaragua and drive from office the Government which had been recognized by the United States.

More than that, these documents indicate, Calles demanded and received from Dr. Sacasa a pledge by which the Nicaragua treaty with the United States for the building of an ocean-to-ocean canal would be abrogated.

The Mexican dictator, we read from these papers, pledged men, money and munitions to the revolutionary Government.

The public, as has been said so often, has a short memory but Americans can not have forgotten so soon that President Coolidge intervened just in time to prevent the overthrow of the Nicaraguan Government friendly to this country and that our President made plain at the time HIS belief that the Nicaraguan revolt had the support, moral or financial, or both, of the Mexican despot.

The honor of senators "attacked"?

In the name of all that is decent and fair and patriotic and American, gentlemen, why turn your backs or shut your eyes to what IS revealed by these Calles documents?

They show that in the year 1926, for example, $2,400,500 was sent to this country to be expended for "secret purposes."

Who got it? Where is it?

We know from the documents themselves that Albert J. Pani, then the Mexican Secretary of the Treasury, did his level best to find out.

Secretary of the Treasury Pani demanded an accounting from the Mexican Government's fiscal agent in New York.

That fiscal agent was and is Arturo M. Elias, a half-brother of President Calles.

What happened when half-brother Elias complained to half-brother Calles that the Secretary of the Treasury was displaying a most annoying activity?

Half-brother Elias, if these documents are what they purport to be, grumbled at the "dangerous chances" Pani was taking in making such inquiries by mail and Secretary of the Treasury Pani, a discerning person with no relish for firing squads, turned in his resignation.

If Mexico were a republic, in reality as well as in name, legal proceedings might be instituted to compel the opening of the Treasury records to the public—but let someone try that today in Mexico!

These Miguel Avila documents, when first they were brought to Mr. Hearst's attention, presented to the publisher of these newspapers a problem which another man in Mr. Hearst's position might have handled differently.

Would he act selfishly, with his possessions in Mexico in mind, or would he be faithful to his high trust as the publisher of fearless and vigorous newspapers?

It is Mr. Hearst's belief that there is no place in American journalism for the suppressor, that the suppression of news, when that news properly belongs to the public, is a betrayal of the public faith.

Ours is a government which derives its powers from the people and which depends upon the people for its life. It is of primary importance, therefore, that the people be kept fully informed.

Studying in these documents the story of how Calles appeared to have paid $100,000 to sway the judgment of a "neutral" arbitrator against American claimants, how he endeavored to strike a bargain with Japan to our annoyance, and how he plotted against us in Nicaragua, Mr. Hearst decided that the story was not his to smother, but belonged to the American people. That decision may have cost him $4,000,000. He was under no obligation to print the documents, except the obligation of fidelity to the public interest.

Let our friend, the complaining Senator, reflect that the Calles libel which the honorable gentleman has had a chance to deny before a Committee of the Senate might not have been revealed in the Senator's lifetime, might have been dug up fifty to seventy-five years hence by some "modern" historian bent upon blackening the fame of all whom men hold in grateful remembrance.

And let our friend, the Senator, remember, too, if he will, that these newspapers did not print his name until it was revealed by the Senate Investigating Committee and printed his denial in the same hour with all other newspapers.

We say again, and we would be willing to say again and again and again, that we never have had the shadow of a suspicion that the names of American Senators were used in the Calles documents for any other purpose than the deception of the people of Mexico.

A rotten condition is revealed by the Calles documents and at our very doors. A Nation which should be one of our best friends is held prisoner by banditti.

It is our earnest hope that the day may not be far distant when Mexico will step out of the darkness and take her rightful place among the free, happy, safe and prosperous peoples of the earth. But that day will not dawn while men who assume to speak for the United States and act for the American people throw their arms around a murderer and give those he holds in bondage to understand that their oppressor has the "United States at his back."

For ten years or more the complaint has been going up in this country that the editorial influence of the press is on the wane. New York elections are recalled, for example, in which candidates have been elected against the opposition of all but one or two newspapers.

* *

One reason for this waning influence of the newspaper may be that journalism of a certain type has degenerated into a mere scramble for profit.

The journalism which succeeds is a journalism unafraid.

FRANK KNOX,
Publisher.
